Highway Allotment Boosts County Budget

Supervisors Adopt County Budget Of $640,545.24 For 1926—Increase Of $59,864.53 In Highway Fund With Decreases In General and Poor Fund Hoists 1926 Budget $34,114.18.

The total county budget for all purposes to be raised on Ulster county as shown by report of the committee on appropriations Monday evening, and adopted by the board of supervisors, is $640,545.24. This is an increase in the budget over last year of $34,114.18. The amount to be raised for the general fund is $19,415.89 less than last year, and for poor fund $6,334.46 less. The highway fund appropriations, however, are $59,864.53 more than appropriated by the 1924 local legislature, which makes the increase in the total of the county budget.

The committee recommended that there be assessed and levied upon the property liable therefore:

For the general fund... $369,977.44
For the poor fund... 44,488.85
Total... $414,466.29
For the highway fund... $226,078.95
Total county budget for all purposes... $640,545.24

1924 Budget.
The county budget of 1924 was as follows:
For the general fund... $389,938.33
For the poor fund... 50,828.81
Total... $440,767.14
For the highway fund... 166,214.12
Total county budget for all purposes... $606,981.26

The report was received and filed and later called off and adopted. This action closed the business and the board adjourned until Monday, December 21, at 4 p. m.

Fire District Discontinued.

After roll call at 8 o'clock, communications were read from Supervisor Dunsbarre requesting the passing of an act for the dissolving and discontinuance of the Gardner fire district, and from Supervisor Auchmoedy authorizing the town of Rosendale to issue a certificate of indebtedness in $2,000 for highway improvements. Consents were given and before the close of the session both acts were introduced, advanced and finally adopted.

Unpaid School Taxes.

Supervisors Elsworth, Avery and Halloran, the committee on town and county accounts, reported that the county treasurer pay to the respective collectors the amount of unpaid school taxes relieved and returned upon warrants signed by the chairman and clerk of the board, as follows:

Denning	$1,059.76
Esopus	1,623.58
Gardiner	213.45
Hardenbergh	634.44
Hurley	243.16
Kingston	673.06

Rochester	443.98
Rosendale	3,210.10
Saugerties	1,791.11
Shandaken	950.24
Shawangunk	1,689.25
Ulster	1,281.69
Wawarsing	1,114.59
Woodstock	17,857.35

Filed and later called up and adopted.

Coroners' Accounts.

The committee on coroners' accounts reported examining accounts and reported warrants be issued in column marked allowed. Amount claimed, $40; amount allowed, $40. Filed, later called up and adopted.

T. B. Report.

The committee on tuberculosis hospital and laboratory reported amount claimed, $505; amount allowed, $505. Filed and later called up and adopted.

Supervisors' Bills.

Supervisor Thomas, Simpson and Brown, committee on supervisors' bills, reported, amount claimed, $23,228.93; amount allowed, $23,127.43; which should be apportioned as follows: On County of Ulster, $13,832.43; town of Lloyd, $23; town of Plattekill, $20. Filed and later called up and adopted.

Salaries Fixed.

The committee on salaries and employment of county officers reported with recommendation that salaries be fixed as follows:

Sheriff	$2,500
Under Sheriff	2,200
Jailor	1,400
Night jailor and jailor at court house	1,700

Clerk, board of elections	750
Stenographer, board of elections	750
County sealer of weights and measures	900
County superintendent of poor	2,500

The committee recommended that there be levied on the county of Ulster, $28,188.96, which amount together with the amounts heretofore transferred by this board to the salary account of the county clerk and his assistants, and the salary account of the sheriff and his assistants, be sufficient to meet the salaries required to be paid during the ensuing year; also $1,650 to pay salaries of deputy clerks and assistant clerks of the board; also that here be levied on county outside of city, $3,400 to pay salaries of county superintendent of the poor and the county sealer of weights and measures.

Minute Men Meet, Pray and Sing Hymns

In Torches' Red Glare, Cross Burning in Air, Men Meet on a Hilltop and Whaley Not There, Except as Mentioned in Songs.

In the light of a burning cross, on top of a hill bordered with all the red fire that the Kingston red fire market could supply, singing so lustily that they were heard more than a mile away, the Independent Klan of America held its first field meeting at Ulster Park Monday night and made 100 per cent American Minute Men out of a large number of candidates from various places, including Rosendale, New Paltz and Highland. While only Minute Men were present at the ceremonies, hundreds of others looked on from a distance, among them Deputy Sheriff and Kleagle Whaley, who was spending a part of the evening at his Ulster Park headquarters. The ceremony of the burning of the cross was opened with prayer and the singing of "Onward Christian Soldiers," and the ritualistic work was interlarded with the singing of "We'll Hang Jeff Whaley to a Sour Apple Tree" and other devotional selections from the Hymnal of the Minute Men. Another choice selection, greatly intimidating the esteem in which the Kleagle is held by the new and reformed Klan, was: "East side, west side, all around the town, The men have gotten together and they'll turn Jeff Whaley down. You may be a sheriff, And carry a little gun. But when we Minute Men get busy There's going to be some fun. Still another metrical expression of sentiment was: "Out of Ulster you must go, You must go, You must go, Kluxers and Whaley."

About 300 men were in attendance, all in ordinary attire and without masks or robes. In fact the seeders from the Klan lost the robes they had paid $5 each for, as when they secured the robes were all in custody of a loyal Klansman who does not propose to surrender them to rebels. After the field meeting candidates for membership were initiated in the hall. Many of these candidates were initiated preliminary to becoming the members of lodges forming in their respective localities.

The Independent Klan of America is, as has been stated previously, an organization professing all the principles for which the K. K. K. claims to stand, but separating from the K. K. K. because of alleged tyranny and abuses in the government of that organization as illustrated here by the conduct of Kleagle Whaley. Any former Klansman may join without payment of membership fee. The Kleagle, however, is still Kleagle and Deputy Sheriff, notwithstanding various charges, affidavits, committees and investigations, including a recent visit to Ulster county of Grand Dragon Smith, who recently removed, the Grand Titan and is temporarily doing the Titan as well as the Dragon work for the state.

A Grand Dragon, as head of the Klan in the state, is also one of the electors who elect the Imperial Wizard. The Imperial Wizard points the Grand Dragon.

800 On Strike At Syracuse

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 8.—All union building trades workers went on strike at noon today in this city, tying up construction totalling more than $2,000,000. About 800 men are out. The strike is ostensibly in support of carpenters who were refused an increase from $1.12 1/2 to $1.25 an hour, but actually it is a struggle over the open shop policy which the Syracuse Builders Exchange attempted to establish.

Printing Bid.

The committee on printing reported one bid for printing copies of proceedings of the board, being from The Freeman Publishing Company at $3.53 a page. Recommended bid be accepted and report was received and adopted.

Equalization.

The committee on equalization filed with clerk of the board a report of its proceedings as such committee. Adopted.

Report of a recent inspection of the county farm by the inspector of state board of charities was received and filed.

Supervisor Snyder moved and it was adopted that Section 7, Rule 6, be suspended.

Farm and Home Bureau.

Supervisors Snyder and Heaton offered a resolution that $6,100 be appropriated for the Farm and Home Bureau, of which the Farm Bureau receives $2,600; home Bureau, $2,500; also that $3,000 be appropriated for the Farm Bureau for the eradication of tuberculosis in cattle. Adopted.

$25 for American Legion.

Supervisors Snyder and Heaton offered a resolution that $25 be placed to the credit of Kingston Post, No. 150, American Legion, for decoration of soldiers' graves. Adopted.

Slaves for Child Welfare.

Supervisors Snyder and Heaton offered a resolution that $1,000 be placed to the credit of board of child

May Strike Snag In Legislature

Albany Gossips Say Republicans May Not Sanction Measures to Carry Out Grade Crossing and Public Improvements Plans of Governor Smith.

Albany, Dec. 8.—Republican leaders have not yet decided whether they will sanction the passage in the 1926 Legislature of measures to carry out Governor Smith's $300,000,000 bond issue for grade crossing elimination, and the $100,000,000 bond issue for public improvements, according to reports going the rounds today at the Capitol.

While both bond proposals were approved by the voters at the last election not one cent of the money can be spent if favorable action is not taken by the Republican lawmakers who will be firmly in control of both houses at the coming session. Reports have reached the Capitol from time to time in the last month that the Republican leaders were more inclined to pass measures to carry out the $100,000,000 bond proposal but that they were set against the grade crossing amendment.

It was said the G. O. P. chiefs still feel about the $300,000,000 bond issue as they did prior to election—that it is unworkable and would bankrupt many of the smaller communities where there are several crossings to be eliminated.

In order to show the people of the state that they favor grade crossing elimination just as much as Governor Smith does, it was said the Republicans would put through a bill carrying for an outright appropriation of $4,000,000 to pay the cost of eliminating crossings. They offered to make a $3,000,000 appropriation at the 1925 session but Governor Smith turned it down, saying the money should come from bond issues.

While the Republicans made a hot pre-election fight against the $100,000,000 proposal, it was said they were more inclined today to pass measures to carry it into effect than the Governor's grade crossing plan. Under the $100,000,000 proposal the lawmakers could not appropriate more than $10,000,000 of the money in any one year. Governor Smith, his friends say, is confident the Republican leaders will not attempt to sidetrack either of the proposals at the coming session.

Four Cases Ready In Supreme Court

Negligence Action Growing out of Death of Alexander Schwartz Is Placed At the Head of Calendar.

The December term of the Supreme court was convened at the court house Monday afternoon with Justice Ellis J. Staley presiding. Willet J. Vandemark of Kingston was selected as foreman of the grand jury which is in attendance at the term.

After the trial jurors had been examined and those presenting legal excuses had been excused by the court the remaining were sworn and a day calendar was made up.

Four cases were ready and placed on the calendar for today. A negligence action No. 4, on the preferred cause calendar was placed at the head of the calendar. It is brought by Nicholas Schwartz as administrator, etc. of Alexander Schwartz against Frank and Alice Flisinger and grows out of the death of the Schwartz child who was struck by the Flisinger car at the Port Ewen end of the Rondout creek bridge early this year. Frank W. Brooks appeared for plaintiff and Benjamin C. Loder for the defendants.

No. 279, James W. Cave plaintiff against American Wood Products, Inc., defendant. Drinker & Canfield for plaintiff and William P. Mason, Jr., for defendant.

No. 284, Anna Rodney, as administratrix, etc., of Jacob Solomon Rodney against Albert Kaplan and Louis Kline, defendants. A negligence action. Judge Jenkins for plaintiff and Ireland, Caverly & Hanley for defendants. This action grows out of an automobile accident.

No. 150, Conrad Robinson against Frank Forman, William Gorman for plaintiff and Van Elten & Cook for defendant.

After making up the day calendar court went into recess until 10 o'clock this morning.

GARBARINO GIVES XMAS TREE TO T. B. HOSPITAL.

As has been the custom of John Garbarino and his father before him, he has already offered a fine Christmas tree as his remembrance to the Ulster County Tuberculosis Hospital for the holiday season. As for the gifts to go with the tree, any contributions for the Christmas celebration at the Tuberculosis Hospital may be sent to Mrs. C. N. Reed, 42 Crown street. Telephone 1012-W.

An Auto Collision.

Harold V. Clanton of 40 Lafayette avenue reported to the police Monday evening that the Hudson sedan he was driving was struck by another car on Albany avenue that evening and quite badly damaged. This morning Harold C. Harrison of Albany avenue reported to the police that his car had been in a collision with the Clanton car that evening.

France Arrests 3 Englishmen on Espionage Charge

Defendants Claim Aviation Information Was for Commercial Purposes Artists' Model Also Arrested—Mistake Says British Press.

Paris, Dec. 8.—Vagaries of a woman's love are under attack today by the French secret police. Convinced that Marcelle Monseil, the Montmartre artists' model, who is held on a charge of espionage, has not told all she knows and is protecting the man she loves, the secret police this afternoon placed the girl under severe cross-examination. It was reported that William Fischer, who is among the three men arrested, has been the sweetheart of Marcelle and police are endeavoring to learn whether the girl has told all she knows of Fischer's activities.

Marcelle is officially charged with espionage and complicity under the espionage laws of 1886 and 1918. Phillips, Fischer and Leuther, the three Englishmen who have been arrested, are now officially charged with espionage.

Members of British Intelligence. Phillips and Leuther, it is reported, have admitted they are members of the British intelligence service but have protested that the aviation information which they sought was for commercial purposes only.

Fischer is understood to have been engaged in counter-espionage for Great Britain during the world war. A radio accessory store which was operated by the three men was today closed by the police and searched up. Officers made a thorough search of the place for incriminating evidence.

Expect More Arrests.

Liberte states that additional arrests for espionage are expected and hint that those arrested not only worked for Great Britain but were also gathering information for another foreign power.

The proprietor of a cafe which adjoins the radio store operated by Phillips stated today that the three arrested men were accustomed to receiving mail and telegrams at his cafe under the fictitious name of Paul Dubig.

The radio store which they operated was only half a block distant from the headquarters of the French secret service. Marcelle, it is well known in the Montmartre district, where she has been a frequent of some of the dancing places frequented by Americans and Englishmen.

Model Paid $60 a Month.

For a salary of sixty dollars a month, it is alleged Marcelle has confessed that she secured information concerning French navy yards, and also regarding the number and size of French aeroplanes.

The girl, it is reported, has confessed that she posed as a parachute jumper in order to obtain access to aviation centers, and having obtained military information she secreted it in a hollow tube in her garter and met the "master spy" on one of his private bridges in the dead of the night to deliver her information to him. Before her arrest it is alleged she destroyed documents and portions of her clothing.

Mistake Says Evening News.

London, Dec. 8.—The three Englishmen arrested in Paris on charges of espionage are "men of unimpeachable integrity" and it is suggested that the Paris police have made a mistake, the Evening News states this afternoon.

The Evening News says it has made a thorough inquiry into the London connections of the arrested men.

O'Bryon Held On "Bad" Check

Milton O'Bryon was arrested at Saugerties by Chief of Police J. Allan Wood and Sergeant Charles Phinney on a warrant obtained by Simon Buddington of the Buddington Auto Repair Shop, charging Milton with grand larceny. It is claimed that Milton gave Buddington a check for $75 drawn on the First National Bank of Saugerties. The check was returned to Buddington marked "No Account." O'Bryon will be arraigned later in police court for a hearing.

KILLED WHEN NEW YORK CENTRAL FLYER HITS CAR

Toledo, Ohio, Dec. 8.—Frank Gaffney, 32, is dying and an unidentified girl, about 17 years old is dead, the result of an accident today when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a New York Central passenger train at a grade crossing. The train crew did not know that the flyer struck the automobile.

The girl's body was badly mangled. Parts of the automobile were scattered two hundred feet along the right of way.

Former Congressman Dead.

Martinsburg, West Va., Dec. 8.—Funeral arrangements were under way today for George M. Bowers, banker and former congressman, who died from paralysis here at his home last night. Bowers was formerly a United States fisheries commissioner and was a prominent orchardist.

State of Nation Good Says Coolidge In Message

Peace, Progress, Prosperity Proclaimed in Annual Message to Congress—Warns Against Further Encroachments on Rights of States—Should Refrain from Spending Sprees or Drastic Legislation.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—President Coolidge informed Congress today that the state of the Nation is uniformly good—that the country is in the midst of peace, progress and prosperity, and that the best way to continue along this pleasant road is for the new Congress to refrain from any spending sprees or drastic legislation.

Accompanying this optimistic message was a series of recommendations, touching upon almost every line of governmental activity, at home and abroad, and all designed to keep the American ship of state moving in present channels.

The president's chief warning to Congress was to refrain from any further encroachments upon the rights of states to regulate their own affairs. There is danger, he said, of centralizing too much authority in Washington.

"Local self-government," the President declared, "is one of our most precious possessions. The wisest policy is to leave the localities, so far as we can, possessed of their own sources of revenue and charged with their own obligations."

Sends Written Message.

In advising Congress this year, President Coolidge departed from the custom re-established by Woodrow Wilson, and did not personally appear before the legislators in joint session. Instead of following the footsteps of Wilson and standing to the rostrum, he transmitted his views in writing, and they reached members through the medium of reading clerks. The absence of the Executive robbed the occasion of some of its usual color and glamour, but the galleries were jammed with the elite notwithstanding.

The message was a lengthy one. After his brief review of the state of national affairs, Mr. Coolidge took up the subjects one by one and presented his recommendations, chief of which were:

Taxation—The new tax bill, cutting income taxes approximately in half, should be promptly passed. While approving the bill "in principle," he declared it goes further than he would have gone in increasing exemptions, but largely it is a good bill and should be passed by March 15.

Air Service Views.

Air Service—No radical change in the organization of the nation's air service is needed. Col. William Mitchell to the contrary. He endorsed the Morrow Board report, recommending three new assistant secretaries in the departments of commerce, war and navy, to handle air service matters, creation of two additional brigadier generals in the army air service, and slight modification of the promotion scheme in the service to allay the discontent of flying officers.

"Our country," said the president, "is not behind in the art of flying." Disarmament—The Locarno peace pact constitutes a great forward step toward world peace and their natural corollary is further reduction of the world's armament.

America is willing, as always, to call another international armament conference, but at this time the chief problem is armies, not navies, and it is only in Europe that large armies are to be found. Thus, the question is considered largely European and for Europeans to solve. Any steps in this direction will be given American encouragement.

While always willing to cooperate and participate in any sensible move looking toward armament reduction, the United States "would not care to attend a conference which from its location or constituency would in all probability prove futile."

No Price Fixing.

Agriculture—Congress should attempt no legislation of the price-fixing variety, either directly or indirectly. The condition of the farmer today is considerably improved, but there are still numerous crops which can better be reached through cooperative effort than by any other method.

A bill to foster and promote cooperative marketing will be introduced by the administration.

"There is every reason to expect," said the president, "that a new era in agricultural prosperity lies just before us, which probably will be unprecedented."

Prohibition The various states should do more work in enforcing prohibition, and let the federal government do it all. The Constitution puts a concurrent duty on the states.

"I request of the people," said the president, "that they continue to support the public forces in carrying out the law for enforcement, and of course, favorable action on the budget recommendations for the prosecution of this work."

Railroads—Congress should give legislation permitting wider consolidation under the supervision of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The railroads as a whole are prosperous, and relations between managements and labor are the best in years.

Urges Continued Economy.

Economy—Strict economy in public expenditure should be continued, with the end in view of retiring the public debt. Taxes cannot be reduced much lower until the enormous annual interest payments are eliminated, and this can only come by reducing the debt.

The Democratic proposal that the public debt be retired in sixty-two years instead of twenty-five, in order to allow more tax reduction, Mr. Coolidge considered unsound and expensive in the long run.

Foreign Debts—The debt agreements with Italy, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Estonia, and Latvia, should be promptly ratified. While in the case of Italy and Belgium the terms are more lenient than the government desired, "they represent the best that can be had and the wisest settlement that can be secured."

"Wherever sacrifices have been made of money, it will be more than amply returned in understanding and friendship."

World Court—Under the reservations already proposed, the Senate should promptly vote American adherence to the World Court.

"The court appears to be independent of the League of Nations—it could go on functioning if the league disbanded."

America, the President said, would not be bound by advisory opinions rendered by the court, either morally or legally.

Alien Property—The present status of German-seized property should not be altered while negotiations for its final disposition are proceeding.

"For the present we should continue in possession of this property which we hold as security for the settlement of claims due our people and our government."

On Immigration. Immigration—The present immigration law is a wise one and is working out satisfactorily, and should not be tinkered with. If aliens continue to smuggle themselves into the country in defiance of American laws, an alien registration law may become desirable.

National Defense—Congress should pass a selective service act which will permit the conscription in time of war of money and material, as well as of men.

National defense, on the whole, is in good shape. The army of 118,000 men should not be further reduced. It is well equipped and well trained. The navy has its full quota of capital ships.

War Veterans—The government is spending millions for relief and care of war veterans and Congress should go slow about authorizing further expenditures in the way of general pensions and other emoluments.

Muscle Shoals—Congress should dispose of this property to private interests, either through outright sale or lease, and to that end should create a commission to receive bids.

"The problem of Muscle Shoals has assumed a place all out of proportion with its real importance. If anything were needed to demonstrate the almost utter incapacity of the national government to deal with an industrial and commercial problem it has been provided by our experience with this property."

Power in Coal Strikes. Coal—Congress should give the president power to intervene in coal strikes. The report of the last Coal Commission, advising this, should be dug up and acted upon.

"The coal industry seems never to have accepted modern methods of adjusting differences between employers and employees."

Shippers—Congress should establish one-man control of the government's shipping fleet, with the shipping board exercising only regulatory and judicial functions.

Reclamation—A policy of cooperation between the states and the government should be encouraged with a view toward reclamation. The government should continue planning big projects and leave the details to the states.

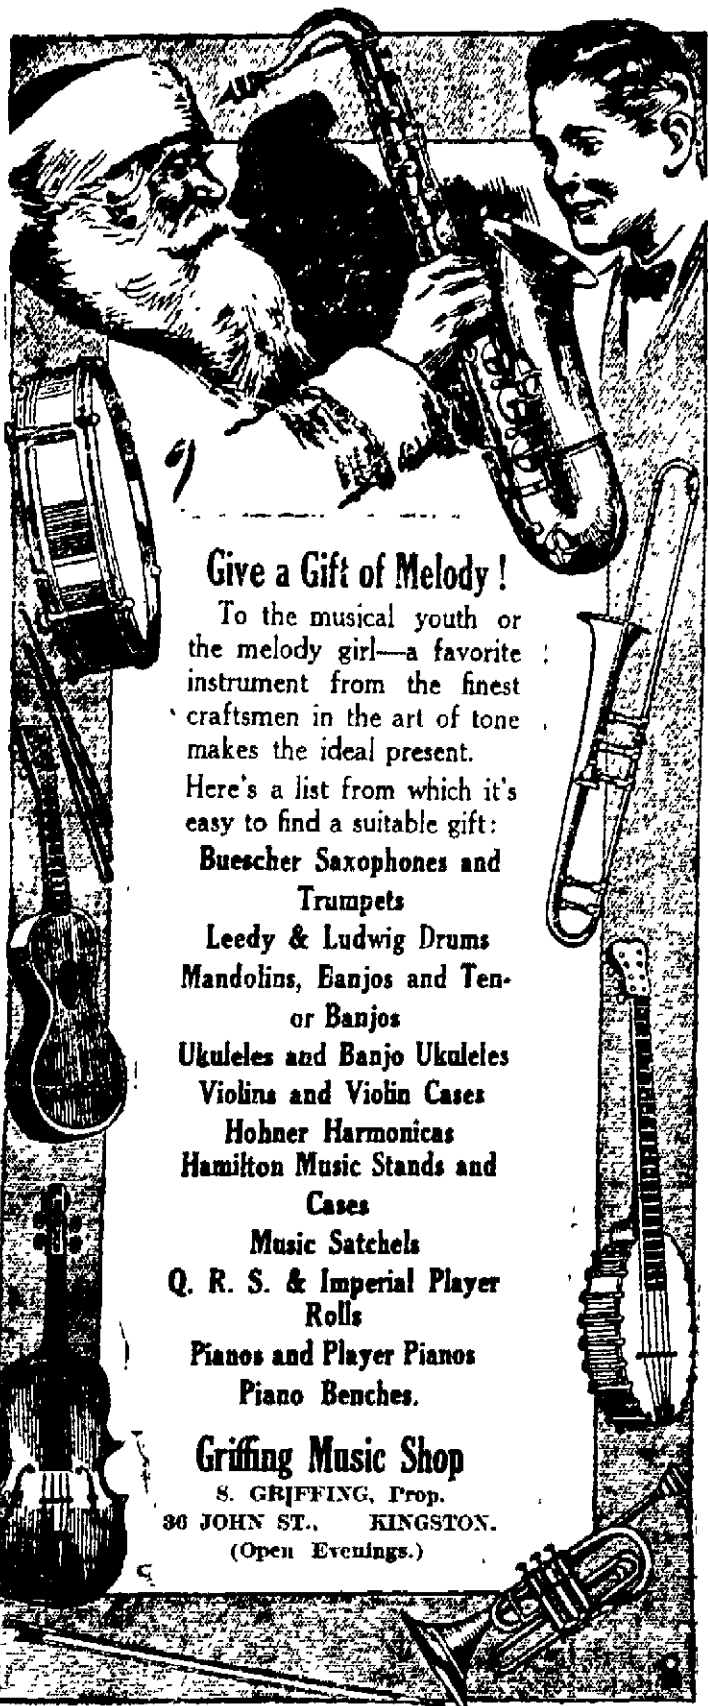

Waterways Development—Congress should create some agency to consider waterways development on a nationwide basis.

A modern canal connecting Chicago, New Orleans, Kansas City and Pittsburgh, should be laid out and work on the tributaries washed.

Water power development should be kept abreast with that of navigation on inland waterways.

Territories—Appropriations for territories, particularly Alaska, should be reduced. Federal expenditures in Alaska appear out of proportion to the population and the amount of production.

Border Civil Service. Civil Service—Civil service should be broadened to take in postmasters, collectors of customs, collectors of internal revenues and prohibition agents.

15,000 Enrolled In Army Schools

Washington, D. C., Dec. 8.—Despite a lack of appropriations, approximately 15,000 students were enrolled in the post schools of the Army during the past year, it was announced by Major General Robert C. Davis, the Adjutant General.

Equipment already at hand was utilized in giving soldiers both educational and vocational training, instructors being drawn from the Army and civilian employees permanently connected with military establishments.

Among the leading subjects stressed in vocational training were carpentry, radio and auto mechanics, while all of the important phases of general education featured the academic schools. Attendance was about equally divided between the two, it was announced.

The schools were kept in active operation except during the five months of the year set aside for field training and combined field exercises. Enrollment in post schools is voluntary except in the case of illiterates and non-English speaking recruits, who are unable to pass the literacy tests.

THE WEEK AT RONDOUT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

The report of the annual turkey dinner and fair of the Rondout Presbyterian Church held in November showed that with all expenses paid the sum of $1,009.22 had been realized.

The Woman's Missionary Society has decided to send a Christmas box to its blind member, Mrs. Minnie Houghtaling, who is an inmate of the Hospital for Incurables at Albany. The box will be in charge of Mrs. Carrie Keator and Mrs. John Rowland, and all gifts will be received by them or should be left with Mrs. Charles G. Ellis at the manse by December 17.

The Sacrament of Our Lord's Supper will be administered next Sunday morning. Preparatory services will be held Thursday evening in the chapel.

Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. R. Powley on West Chestnut street, there will be a display of handwork of the girls of the Girls' Industrial School at Fochow, China.

The Westminster Guild will meet this evening with Miss Lillian Metcalf on Crane street.

British Expert Sees Addition to Wealth

Experiments in producing oil from coal, in which various science departments at Birmingham (England) university have been collaborating for three years, have shown that 61 per cent of liquid can be extracted from Lancashire coal by powdering it and subjecting it to very high pressures of hydrogen gas. Professor Nash, who has taken a leading part in research, when asked as to the significance of the discoveries from the standpoint of industrial utilization of British coal resources, said he was only able to announce that the laboratory tests had demonstrated oil could be got from coal. The commercial exploitation he was not competent to discuss. The liquid products have not been investigated in detail, but apart from small proportions of unidentified substances they consist of hydrocarbons which are basis of all fuel oils. South Staffordshire coal gave 37 per cent of liquid, while a South Wales coal gave 26 per cent.

Cause Enough

A camel has its limit of endurance as the old saw concerning the ultimate straw and the broken back will testify. Mrs. North also had her limit, which was finally reached when an argument about which little could be understood continued with unabated fury for two hours in the Smith household next door.

Calling to Willie Smith, who was playing in the back yard, Mrs. North asked the seven-year-old shining light of the warring Smiths:

"What is all the row about, Willie?"
"Oh, mamma put her cushion on daddy's chair and he sat down on it," replied the small lad.

"Why, that is no cause for such an argument, is it?"

"Sure it is! It was mamma's pin cushion!"

As Dad Sees It

"My boy," said the Billville father to his literary offspring, "this here so-called 'fire of genius' is well enough in the lazy, dreamful summertime, but when the winter wind is rumbling in the hollows and cavortin' round the frosty hills, it can't hold a tallow candle to cordwood and hard coal. Here's a new ax that has never cut down a pine sapling, or a oak tree, and split 'em to kindling wood. Suppose you christen it, and make the chimney blaze? There's no better way to keep up your college athletic exercises. It heats an apple a day for downright good health and spirits. So roll up your sleeves and get busy."—Atlanta Constitution.

Vivian's Memory Prodigious

One of the sources of the late Rene Vivian's eloquence was his profound knowledge of French literature. He knew by heart thousands of verses and could recite entire acts of the classic tragedies without an error. He demonstrated this at the time of his nuptials, when he agreed to surprise the examiner by his accurate analysis of "The Old Man and the Sea." "Can you recite a few verses of it?" the examiner asked. "Certainly," said Vivian, and had recited the whole of the first act before he was halted. On another occasion he recited the whole of "Hecuba" and "Thebes" from beginning to end.

Fate's Grim Jest— The Startling Story of a Girl Caught in the Web of Circumstance

WHEN Claire Demarest came to work in the office, Ruth's friends were few, and her pleasures fewer still.

So when Claire—popular, good-looking, smartly dressed—offered her friendship, Ruth's excitement knew no bounds.

Had she known the influence this friendship was to have in her life—she would have shrunk from it as from poison.

For it was Claire Demarest, with her stories of gay parties, that made Ruth long for good times too.

To Ruth it all seemed harmless fun. And when one night she joined Claire and two men "friends" for a spin into the country, her excitement blinded her to everything.

How this innocent girl slipped farther and farther down the perilous path will grip your interest and stir your emotions as few stories, real or imagined, have ever done.

Ruth's astounding story, told with all the vividness and dramatic power that can come only from one who has lived what she writes, appears under the title, "Buried Secrets," in the January issue of True Story Magazine.

There is a lesson in this true-life narrative that no girl who reads it can ever forget.

Other Absorbing Features in January True Story Magazine

"When a Man Lies"

—Warren Kirkwood seemed to be all a man should be. But there were many things Jennie was to learn, though the learning brought sorrow and life-long regret.

"Forbidden Ways"

—Peggy might have married Bob but she longed for romance. So Bob gave her a year. Peggy never went back to Bob. This pathetic story will tell you why.

"Her Atonement"

—She thought she was in love with a man who belonged to another. Yet when he offered marriage, she fled from him. Why?

A Month's Supply of Thrilling True Stories

Life is so full of drama, comedy, pathos and tragedy that no one magazine can hope to reflect all of it. For that reason, Bennett Macfadden offers you in addition to True Story Magazine each month three wonderful sister publications, "Dream World," "True Romances," and "True Experiences." If you like True Story, you will find these other magazines just as thrilling. Each one of this group of four Macfadden publications appears on the newsstands on different dates during the month—so that if you buy each magazine as it comes out, you are assured a whole month's supply of fascinating true stories for only $1.00.

Watch for True Story on the 5th—Dream World on the 15th—True Romances on the 23rd—True Experiences on the 1st of each month.

"Whose Fault?"

Governor Silzer Raps President

For His Hands Off Policy in Anthracite Coal Strike—Compares Coolidge's Handling With President Roosevelt.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 8.—Governor George S. Silzer, of New Jersey, criticized President Coolidge's attitude toward the anthracite coal strike today in answering a petition adopted by the board of commissioners of Jersey City dealing with the coal situation. The governor compared the president's handling of the present strike with the late President Roosevelt's action in ending the anthracite miners' suspension during his administration.

"The president in his inaugural address in dealing with the coal situation, three years ago said that the thing to do was to let the industry purify itself," wrote Governor Silzer, "and indicated that he intended to keep his hands off. The three years experience has shown us that the industry will not correct itself and that we are again faced with the distressing condition due to another strike."

"We also find that during these three years nothing has been done by the administration to either correct the conditions or to anticipate their recurrence. The administration must know the possibility of suffering, but evidently its policy is not to interfere. Whether the president has had a change of mind and will suggest remedies at the coming session I do not know."

"President Roosevelt evidently had no legal authority, but he had behind him not only his own personality but the strength of the people of the United States, and he settled the strike that occurred during his administration."

"As requested, I am forwarding your petition to the president for consideration and definite action."

"Ma" Will Not Call Session

Austin, Texas, Dec. 8.—There will be no special session of the Texas State Legislature for the purpose of investigation and impeachment, so far as Governor Miriam A. "Ma" Ferguson is concerned.

In a statement issued today in response to a petition presented to her by Speaker of the House, Lee Satterwhite and 44 other members that she call a special session not later than December 10 to convene on January 4, next, the governor said:

"I have decided that I will not call the session as requested for the reason that I do not see any necessity for putting the people to this extra expense at this time when every effort should be made to hold government appointments within the bounds of economy."

Coal Magnate Found Guilty

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 8.—A jury composed of five women and seven men today found John A. Bell, aged 60, a coal magnate and bankrupt financier, guilty of embezzlement of more than $600,000 in funds of the Carnegie Trust Company, his defunct bank.

The jury deliberated only thirty minutes.

HEAD OF SAFETY COUNCIL WAS A DRUNKEN DRIVER.

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 8.—Charles H. Quackenbush, president of the Delaware Safety Council, which has been conducting a campaign against reckless driving, was fined $300 and costs in municipal court here today, after pleading guilty, through his counsel, to a charge of operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor.

KILLS HIMSELF BECAUSE HE WAS SCOLDED

Lowell, Mass., Dec. 8.—Scolded by his mother because he stayed out late last night, Henry E. Palisoul, 14, shot and killed himself today. After the scolding the boy ran to his room. His mother, hearing a shot, dashed into the room and found her son bleeding to death on his bed.

The Nervous System

The human nervous system is really a living telegraph line made up of electrical conductors, thinks Dr. W. R. Whitney of the General Electric Co., according to Science. This idea is sharply disputed by scientists, who say that nerve messages do not travel at the speed of electricity, but Doctor Whitney demonstrated with condenser apparatus that the transit time of a message can be slowed down even to three seconds, a time much longer than the known nerve reaction time of a human being.

Attractive Colors for Day and Evening Wear

This is a season of color—strong vivid intense color that for all its brilliancy is wonderfully becoming and never in any way suggests the crude shades of other days.

The colors used most extensively for daytime models are rich shades of blue, in a varied range of tones; reds that run the gamut from pale tones of bois de rose to deep Burgundy hues; greens, especially shades that have much gray in their coloring, and the whole family of browns, beginning with a delicate beige tone and ending with dark earthy shades. For evening there is a preference for pastel shades of pink, blue, green and yellow, and the vivid coral and orange tones so universally becoming.

One of the most important of the French designers has introduced a number of interesting models developed in a bright shade of blue combined with canary yellow or flesh color.

These color effects appear not only in evening models, but in the simpler type of dress designed for afternoon wear. An attractive model which features a combination of bright blue and flesh color is shown in the accompanying sketch.

For its development, satin-finished crepe is used with embroideries in the same tone. Chemisette and cuffs are of flesh-colored chiffon delicately embroidered in silver.

A charming note is introduced in wristbands of pink velvet ribbon. The use of ribbons in delicate colors with dark materials is an important phase of the modes of the new season and gives a charming and piquant accent.

Many Decorative Pins in Attractive Shapes

Some handsome pins furnish decoration for the shoulder. These serve no purpose in particular, except to secure one end of a scarf. They are shown in lovely shapes, of onyx and crystal, jade, amethyst and rose quartz. Some, of course, are set with genuine stones, to be worn with afternoon and evening dress. Chic little ornaments of this sort are designed in the various sports patterns, jockey caps, riding crops, spurs and bridles. Some of the new hatpins are charming, both those that fasten the hat on and those that only trim. The fashion is so well established that unusual attention is given to the designing of these pins that often form the sole trimming of a hat. Some are costly, with finely carved bits of crystal, jade, onyx or quartz, and even precious stones hand carved. A pair of gold and platinum mercury wings forms one of the newest pins from a Parisian designer, and these are reproduced in gift to be worn on gold lame evening slippers. Arrows, birds, wide-winged insects and, indeed, classic heads in metal or carved stones are shown among the handsomer ornaments.

Fancy Gloves Are Well Liked; Many Designs

Gloves with fancy cuffs we have had with us for three whole seasons, radical novelties of Parisian origin that were regarded as so outrageous and accepted slowly. Now, they are so well liked that many new designs are seen from time to time. The manner of treating these latest examples is expressed in various ways. The cut-out work is popular, and so is the little circular, swirled (frill) so becoming to the hand. The metal tie is again on vogue, too, and some gloves in beige, brown, tan and a shade bluish to blue are shown with bands of all his finishing the wrist. Something of an eccentricity is a glove of white lace with a black band on the back with silver thread and finished at the edge with two narrow bands of silver lace.

"SOLD HIS SOUL."

We read that the long absence from Russia of Chalapin, the famous operatic basso, has aroused bitter comment in the Soviet press which accuses the great singer of having "sold his soul to Mammon." Why is he not singing in Russia for a comparative pittance and patriotically giving part of it as well as the support of his presence to the glorious experiment in communism, instead of collecting the tainted gold of the capitalist countries? Of course, both Chalapin and his critics know why. He left Russia in 1922 on a Soviet passport for one year with the understanding that a percentage of his fees would go to the Soviet famine fund. In a recent interview he is quoted as saying:

"I have concert engagements in America and Australia for several years, and am obliged to carry them out. I left Russia without a cent and found it necessary therefore to sell my soul to the devil. Yes, I sold it, and it is not my fault."

Perhaps the worry in Soviet circles does not stop at the fear that Russia will hear Chalapin sing no more. There appears to be basis for the more disturbing fear that communism will get no share of the tainted gold he is collecting in foreign lands, where he has sunk to the very depths of "selling his soul" to the capitalist devils.

HOME BOOKKEEPING.

Nowadays, when much is being said of budgets and efficiency in public life, there is no reason why budgets should not be prepared in private life and efficiency used in the management of personal affairs. There has been, of course, some progress along this line but there is probably room for more of it, or at least room for more to apply the rule. Domestic science has played a prominent role in the conduct of homes and has done much good, but the question is how many put it into practice? There is nobody who cannot adopt some of the principles, no matter how rich or how poor, and people of moderate means would be the most benefited.

The custom with too many, and it is regrettable, is to simply go along, not counting the cost of anything, but hoping by some means to pay for everything. It is not only a slipshod method, but expensive, for with a little attention to detail small savings that would amount to much in the aggregate could be made, and with no self-denial as regards things needed. Instead of having a budget of what is required, the business of conducting a home is too often managed on a hit-or-miss basis, which is of disadvantage to all concerned.

So, one worth-while resolution is that you will know where every cent goes during the year 1926. If this is done it will mean a year of more personal efficiency and it will be proof of the value of home bookkeeping, which is really home bookkeeping. And by 1927 it will be seen that it pays.

INTER-RACIAL MARRIAGE.

Whatever may be thought of Leonard Kip Rhinelander, whether he be regarded as a social misfit and muddle-headed defective, or merely as a sensualist whose voluntary misconduct retributively entangled him and placed him in his present unenviable position, there is point in some of his counsel's remarks on the subject of the disastrous results of miscegenation. Addressing the jury called on to consider whether young Rhinelander's marriage to a mulatto (an alleged ignorance of her mixed blood), seventy-five-year-old Isaac N. Mills, former Supreme Court Justice, said in part:

"There is not a father among you who would not rather see his son in his casket than to see him wedded to a mulatto woman. There is not a mother among you who would not rather see her daughter with her white hands crossed in her shroud than to see her locked in the embrace of a mulatto husband. This feeling of race does not belong to the whites alone. Decent blacks have the same feeling."

Undoubtedly there is such race prejudice—but why? The answer is simple enough. Fundamentally it is the barrier erected by nature itself in order to prevent the several distinct races of men from becoming one.

There is some very good and sufficient reason why the white, the black, the brown and the yellow races of men have not been merged into one mongrel and inferior amalgamate, and why the few who defy the labored instinct of mankind excite horror among the normal-minded. Judge Mills said there was another likelier in the Rhinelander case—society or the people. And certainly it is true that inter-racial marriages are not according to sane public policy and ought to be discouraged by all possible means.

MORE STOUT PEOPLE HERE.

Some British physicians came over to the United States to study diabetes because there were more cases over here than perhaps anywhere else in the world.

One of their comments was that the people on this side were a great deal fatter than were people abroad, and that there were more diabetic people forty years of age here than over there. Their explanation was that not only were the people fatter, but they took less exercise.

A prominent Boston physician stated that one explanation might be that of the nineteen million automobiles in the world seventeen millions were in North America.

Now although this dread ailment is under control, due to Dr. Banting's discovery of insulin, nevertheless the two points noted by these visiting physicians, that our people were stouter and took less exercise, should make us do a little thinking.

None of us want to go back to stair climbing, to walking great distances to and from our employment, nor to have our men perform heavy tasks that our labor-saving machinery has made unnecessary, but I'm just wondering if in accepting all these advantages of our land, we are not becoming a soft nation physically. It is pleasing to see numbers of our youngsters play, but in the olden days all boys and girls played or worked, or did both.

And as to food, as I've said before, the world's products are at hand all the year around, with cooking to tempt the appetite.

It is going to be hard to persuade folks to walk when they can ride, or to eat a reasonable quantity of food when so much can be obtained. This lesson of the old testament that by the sweat of the brow we were to eat our bread, would seem to be very timely with us.

Our work doesn't call forth perspiration often, so we should take some exercise daily and reduce our food intake.

TWENTY AND TEN YEARS AGO.

Dec. 8, 1905.—Fort Ewen reported the discovery of a gold mine.

Employees of the trolley road formed a benefit association with Abram Palen, John Feeney and Walter Flannigan as trustees. Ernest Steuding had three ribs fractured in a runaway. Elbert Hubbard lectured in Burgevin's Hall on "The Gospel of Work."

Two buildings at the plant of the Hudson River Wood Pulp Company at Brown's Station, were destroyed by fire.

Dec. 6, 1915.—The large coal shed and storage warehouse owned by H. W. Palen's Sons and leased by E. T. McGill, was destroyed by fire with a loss of $14,000.

Dr. Mary O'Mara elected president of Ulster County Medical Society at annual meeting held at the Clinton House.

William G. Lowe died at his home on Broadway, aged 67 years. Death of William Benson, who was for many years one of the foremost dry goods merchants of Kingston. He was 97 years old.

How We Get "Turncoat"

The epithet "turncoat" is said to have taken its rise from one of the first dukes of Savoy, whose dominions lying open to the incursions of the two contending houses of Spain and France, he was obliged to temporize and fall in with the power that was most likely to distress him, according to the success of their arms against each other. So being frequently obliged to change sides, he humorously got a coat made that was blue on one side and white on the other, and might be indifferently worn either side out. While in the Spanish interest, he wore the blue side out, and the white side was the badge for the French. Hence he was called the "Turncoat" by way of distinguishing him from other princes of the same name of that house.—Exchange.

How "Records" Are Made

The person making the record sings or plays before a microphone (formerly a sound or phonograph horn) which concentrates the sound waves upon a diaphragm to which a recording needle is attached. The needle cuts the impression in a blank wax record.

When the wax record is pronounced perfect it is dusted with graphite and electroplated. This forms a permanent or master record, from which the working negatives are made by taking wax impressions of it and obtaining copper electrodes in turn from them. From these negatives by means of a hydraulic press the familiar commercial records are made, the material used being a composition containing shellac, wood charcoal, barium sulphate, earth coloring matter and cotton stock.

Won't Burn Up

Aluminum furniture is now being made for homes and offices.

HOW

VEGETABLE ALCOHOL MAY REPLACE "REAL THING"—Motor cars are turning in many parts of the world without real petrol in their tanks. They rely for their power on vegetable alcohol, prepared by modern chemists from fruits, roots, seeds, and even flowers.

In France, alcohol is extracted from sugar beet, and ten gallons of spirit have been extracted from a ton of this vegetable. Potatoes have been used for the same purpose in Germany.

From fifteen to sixty gallons of alcohol can be obtained from a ton of acorns, horse chestnuts or figs. In Australia, over 20,000,000 acres are infested by a certain kind of prickly pear, but recently this pest has become a source of profit, for it is said that fourteen gallons of spirit are yielded from a ton of the prickly stems.

Although alcohol is also extracted from artichokes, maize and rice are the richest sources of supply. You can get about a dessertspoonful of spirit from every ounce of rice.

Seaweed is probably the strangest source from which alcohol for power purposes is obtained. Tons are gathered every year, and after treatment by industrial chemists yield a very high proportion of useful spirit.

How Antiseptic Rays

Got Rid of Microbes

Two scientists recently dropped a bottle containing an antiseptic into a vessel of impure water. The bottle was tightly corked so that its contents could not come in contact with the water. Yet 24 hours later, when the bottle was taken out, 25 per cent of the microbes in the water had been killed.

The account of this experiment, conducted by Doctor Techoueyres and Doctor Bunau-Varilla, was given before the French Academy of Sciences, says a writer in Popular Science Monthly. An explanation advanced is that the antiseptic gives off rays that attack microbes. The tube that contained the antiseptic, a weak solution of chloride of lime, was made of quartz, which apparently let the rays through readily.

The consequence of this experiment may be of great importance. Our drinking water, for example, in the future may be purified at very low cost without chemicals.

It Makes a Difference

Your success in life depends on your motive. There is an old fable about a dog that boasted of his ability as a runner. One day he gave chase to a rabbit but failed to catch it. The other dogs ridiculed him on account of his previous boasting. His reply was, "You must remember that the rabbit was running for his life, while I was only running for my dinner." The incentive is all-important. If you are in the race merely for your dinner you will not put the same vim and energy into your running as you will if your ambition is deeper and more serious. Get the right motive and your chance of success will be much greater.—Boston Transcript.

150 YEARS AGO

The Origin of the U. S. A.

By Jonathan A. Hawson, Jr.

SIMON BAXTER, TYPICAL TORY.

Yesterday's story told of the problem of the revolutionary leaders of 150 years ago in dealing with their Tory enemies en masse in New York state. Throughout all the colonies they had to deal constantly with individual Tories who were forever annoying them beyond endurance by their stubborn adherence to the old system of subjection to His Britannic Majesty. As a sample of those irrepressible advocates of the old order against which the Revolution was directed, permit us to introduce one Simon Baxter of Alstead, New Hampshire.

As related in the ancient archives of his town, this Baxter was "wealthy for the time, bold, reckless, fond of enjoyment and defying public opinion." His farm of fifty or more acres partly encircled a starlike lake of crystal beauty. One of but four in his town who refused to sign the "Association Test," Baxter was one of those troublesome folk to whom Washington had referred when he threatened a fate worse than that meted out to disloyal office-holders "if there is not considerable reformation in their conduct." Regardless of many such warnings, Baxter continued to flaunt his loyalty to his sovereign until, at a special session of the County Court in Keene, he was "indicted" and cast into prison.

The prison in Keene was not then made of neatly laid brick, but was a low, narrow log hut with but one small window, through which the prisoner could look out upon the world. Simon looked out, and, looking, made it his duty to carry on his King's business. Did a patriot come in sight, he raised his eyes to the heavens and lifting his voice, he began all over again to sing and shout that famous old ballad, the "Vicar of Bray."

Now the Vicar of Bray, it will be remembered, intended to stay vicar of Bray regardless of the politics or religion of his times, and he readily became Catholic or Protestant without difficulty, as seemed best at the moment. Loudly and untiringly did Baxter thus taunt his unchosen neighbors with what he called their reprehensible "turncoat" ways. Children drew back from their path when his loud voice was raised, and, clinging together, rushed past the rude jail and into the woods, perhaps just a bit elated by this daily adventure.

In the end Baxter's farm was confiscated by the town of Alstead, along with the property of other "obnoxious Tories," and the deed for the same given to the next parties to occupy it, and Baxter was allowed to sail away to Nova Scotia to make himself another home among more congenial neighbors. Of such unflinching determination were thousands of Tories with whom Washington and his compatriots had to contend.

New Legion Head
Here SaturdayCOL. HARRY C. WILDER,
N.Y. State
Commander
American Legion

The American Legion in New York, Colonel Harry C. Wilder, of Malone, will be the guest of Kingston Legionnaires on Saturday, December 12, at two o'clock at the Armory in this city when he will meet in Kingston all Post commanders and Post Adjutants of the Third District.

The purpose of the conference is to establish the policies and aims of the Legion in this state for the coming year. Colonel Wilder who will preside has just returned from a conference of all State Commanders at National Headquarters of the Legion in Indianapolis, where Colonel John R. McQuigg of Ohio, the New National Commander, told them of what the Legion expected to do in 1926. Commander Wilder will report on this conference and will also determine at this meeting what the Legion shall do in this state during the coming year.

Commander Wilder will be accompanied by a number of other state and district officers.

The third district comprises the counties of Rensselaer, Albany, Schoharie, Greene, Columbia, Ulster and Sullivan.

The conference is open to all members of the American Legion. It is anticipated that this will be one of the largest district conferences held in New York state. Kingston Post, being one of the largest posts in the district and in this case the hosts of the conference, will probably be represented by a large number of members.

$3,109 IN POCKETS.

With a small fortune in currency concealed in the pockets of his trousers, the lifeless body of Elias E. Corgan, 67 years old, of Middletown, was discovered Saturday afternoon in a bedroom of his home there. Mr. Corgan apparently had died from acute indigestion. When the body was searched by the police the money was found wrapped in manila paper. The cash in his pockets totaled $3,109.05. In addition there were two bank books found in the pockets. As far as known the dead man left no will and his property will probably be inherited by his sister, from whom he had been estranged for many years. From the appearance of the wrappers on the money it had been carried in his pockets by Corgan for many months.

Residents of English
Town "Cultivate" Cats

The old nursery rhyme about the cats of St. Ives is based on a solid foundation, for St. Ives, England, is the cat kingdom, as is evident to any visitor. Cats are encouraged to the limit. By an old resident it is thus explained:

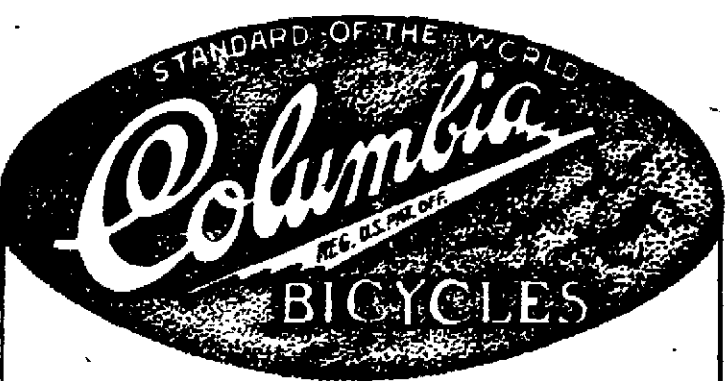

"This is a very old town—500 years some of the houses, leastways their cellars, and parts of the foundation are. Now, we keep our fishing gear in the cellars, and there is a terrible lot of rats and mice about in an old place like this. Well, the rats, and the mice, too, would eat the nets; they'd eat us out of house and home if it were not for the cats.

"A characteristic of the cats of St. Ives is that they do a little fishing for themselves. These sleek, well-fed and exceptionally friendly animals delight in a romp over the sand and in dodging the waves. Afterward they will watch for hours by some shallow pool for some unsuspecting fish or small crab which ventures from its retreat from a bunch of seaweed or a rock."—Chicago Journal.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

BEAUTY SPEAKS

"Without me," said Beauty, "there would be a dreadful mixture of color in nature."

None of them. I am the one—Beauty—who sees that in spite of the great numbers of colors used in nature none of them fall to harmonize.

"Without me there would be dreadful mixtures of scents."

"Without me there would be dullness, flatness, ugliness, and stupidity."

"I am the one—I, Beauty—who sees that in spite of the great numbers of colors used in nature none of them fall to harmonize."

"They say, at all these seasons, 'It is so beautiful.'"

"Yes, it is because I, Beauty, am in the world. Some may call it Nature. Some may call it Spring, or Autumn, or Summer, or Winter."

"But it is Beauty in the world that is at the heart of everything."

"I will do something very clever now. I will do something very bright and smart and amazing."

"I will gather all the most beautiful things together and have them all appear at the same time."

"That is what I have decided I would do. That is quite a new, new idea, and I wanted to do something new."

"I will summon all the most beautiful that people will wonder and marvel, and exclaim."

"It was always beautiful. But see now, it is all, entirely beautiful. All the beauty can be seen at once."

"So will they speak."

"Yes, I will attend to that now."

So Beauty became very busy. She went to the Springtime and summoned the Springtime to come along with her.

"Do not bring the mud and the showers and the bad weather of the spring and the bad walking, but bring the flowers and the sweet blossoms and the spring scents and the buds that are hidden under the blossoms."

"Bring the loveliness of spring—just the loveliness that you have within your power to bring."

Beauty went to the Winter then, and said:

"Bring with you the white, smooth, sparkling snow of your season. Take your place alongside Spring and bring to my remade world your glory for all time."

"There will be in this world of mine only Beauty. I will be Queen Beauty."

"Why wait for months for the beauties of winter to be seen? We will have winter all the time, and spring all the time and summer all the time and autumn all the time."

"Bring the frosts and the blue-white pictures they make, bring the tall, gleaming icicles. But do not bring any of the bad weather, the terrible storms, the wild ways that you have at times."

"Come with me."

Then she summoned Summer and said:

"Bring your wild flowers of the country roads, bring your sweet-scented hay, bring your warmth and your sunniness and your golden richness. But do not bring your dust, and do not bring your dryness."

"Come with me."

Then she summoned Autumn and said:

"Bring your flaming colors, your scarlet leaves and your russet browns. Bring your meat-filled nuts and your warm, smoky bonfires and your reflecting lakes and ponds in which we can see your colors."

"But do not bring any of your 'Come With Me' cold rains, or your stretched mist or your sharp manners. Come with me." Thus did Beauty speak, and these were her ideas.

Made Her Lonesome

Gwen's mother had left her with a neighbor for an afternoon while she went to the dentist. In spite of all the playthings the hostess had Gwen began to get lonesome.

"I wish you would not be lonesome, Gwen," the hostess said. "With all these things to play with you should be happy here."

"But it's not where I am alone, it's where I am lonesome," Gwen said. "It's where I am not."

Saw Six States From Fire Tower

Forest Fire Observation Tower in Delaware County Enabled Watcher to See Country for Distance of Two Hundred Miles.

Albany, Dec. 8.—Observer Alfred Waterman, in charge of the conservation commission's forest fire observation tower at Twaddell Point station, Delaware county, sends to the commission a story of a remarkable experience which he had when on duty at 6 a. m. on October 8. He writes:

"I was in the tower of Twaddell Point station at 6 a. m. The sky was covered with thin, leaden-colored clouds and the air was so clear that objects forty miles away appeared to be only ten miles. The tower on Balsam Lake Mountain (about 25 miles distant) was plainly visible to the naked eye.

"In looking around without field glasses something white drew my attention. This was in the direction of Albany and proved to be fog over the Hudson river extending 30 or 40 miles south from that city. Beyond that was spread out a view such as few people have seen east of the Mississippi. The southern end of the Green Mountains, beyond this, fog over the Connecticut river, next the White Mountains of New Hampshire, with Mt. Washington at the end of the view. I estimated the distance at well over 150 miles. It is actually 200.

"Mt. Washington was visible to the naked eye as a dark cloud, but stood out plain and clear with field glasses. At that time portions of six states were visible: New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Vermont and New Hampshire.

Some remarkable views are obtainable from the fire observation towers of the conservation commission which are located on the tops of the state's highest mountains, but the territory embraced in Observer Waterman's report is quite unusual.

Hair's Change Never Explained by Science

To a recent number of T. P.'s and Cassell's Weekly, Prof. J. Arthur Thomson—who is a kind of self-appointed British pope of popular science, and a very good one, too—elucidates the causes that make people's hair turn gray.

The subject was dealt with very successfully a number of years ago by Professor Poulton, the Oxford entomologist, in his book, "Animal Colours," on which Professor Thomson is evidently basing his own ideas.

The story of the responsible bankers whose hair turned gray in a single week during times of crisis like the World war is probably quite true. Such cases are not uncommon in history. Marie Antoinette's hair, for example, is said to have turned white in a very short time as a result of emotional distress; and similar instances are recorded by a number of medieval writers.

The sudden change of color is due to the intrusion of little bubbles of gas into the substance of the hair, which reflects the light and prevents the pigment, which is still present, from showing. When hair goes gray more slowly, it is—or so Metchnikoff believed—due to the officious activity of white corpuscles which have got into the bad habit of prowling up into the hair and devouring the pigment.

Many fur-bearing animals change color with the weather, and the mechanism involved in these changes appears to be very much like that which affects human hair.

Santa Is Coming To Crosspatch

Community House Will Welcome the Old Gentleman, Laden With Gifts for the Children and Many of Their Elders.

Crosspatch Community Center will hold its usual Christmas celebration on Saturday evening, December 26, at the new Community House on the Gauld road, just beyond Willow.

Santa Claus has been interviewed and says that he will be there with bells on and will have not only a stocking filled with presents for each person, but also a box of candy and some of the special dolls and toys, that always create such merriment.

Everybody is invited to the Crosspatch party. No admission is ever charged, but those who come to share its good cheer are expected to be on terms of peace and good will with their neighbors, so they may enter into the true Christmas spirit.

All the children are especially invited and it is a neighborly kindness to see that all the children in the vicinity are brought to the party. Santa Claus has something for every one of them.

The Christmas tree at Crosspatch is a huge affair and one could not see a prettier one in a big city. Harvey Ostrander will get a fine balsam of just the right proportions and the ornaments saved from one year to another gleam brightly. Mrs. Cross will also bring with her the newest things for decorating a tree.

Besides the lovely tree and the visit of Santa Claus, there is a big doll who shuts her eyes and walks and says "Mamma." She will go to some person. The big doll has been a feature of the Christmas parties for years and the lucky possessor is always very happy.

A penny shower for the little children is a part of the fun. Mrs. Cross brings one hundred bright pennies and someone tosses them in the air and there is a delighted scramble for them. Pennies have a queer way of getting into odd nooks, but it is clear that are all discovered, for no stray penny has ever turned up when the floor is swept after the party.

Of course there will be dancing, all the lovely old-fashioned square dances—that, by the way—are coming into style again in city ball rooms. The gayest of jazz is also popular at Crosspatch. There is the phonograph with the latest dance hits to alternate with Walter Shultis and his really good orchestra.

New Crosspatch House is only a half a mile beyond the Willow post office and is on a good road, easily accessible by car. While not so picturesque as the older house on the mountain, the new place is easier reached.

It is "new" only in the sense of being recently remodeled for community purposes. The house is nearly one hundred years old and was a part of the Gauld estate for many years. It was known as "Lester's House," because Lester Wolven lived there alone for years. He is still there as a caretaker for New Crosspatch. Last Fourth of July hundreds of people came to see the noble sliding door and the secret stairway to the hidden attic. That attic has now a stone fireplace and Santa Claus is likely to use it. The first thing the children will know, they'll see him looking over the rail—for the old attic makes a sort of balcony overlooking the new addition which Mrs. Cross built on to the old house so as to get room for dancing.

Mrs. Cross was in some doubt about the Christmas celebration this year, as she has not fully recovered her strength since a serious illness last August, but the whole countryside look forward to Crosspatch Christmas, so she decided, with the help of generous friends, to make all the necessary arrangements with Santa Claus and feels sure that some of the young people will help with the decorations, as they have in other years.

Crosspatch is well known to many people at a distance, some of them, former residents of Ulster county, and many letters have been received with messages of holiday good cheer.

Crosspatch Community Center was started by Mrs. Cross in 1920. She took an old barn on Crosspatch farm and rebuilt it into Community House. The object of Crosspatch has always been to promote neighborliness and good feeling and it is especially interested in the children for they are the coming citizens and they remember the impressions that they get while very young.

Christmas is the most important celebration and it is a pretty sight to see the young people who have married in the past few years bringing their little tots to the Crosspatch parties. Without being too severe it is always understood that people must be on their good behavior at the community parties. This only means that no one shall do anything to annoy or distress other people.

In a hard-elder country, the question of drinking is more or less of a problem at public parties, but it is sort of understood that it isn't done at Crosspatch, so there is often uproarious fun but still a high standard of conduct.

The whole family come to Crosspatch, from grannies—perhaps even great-grandpas—to the tiniest baby in arms. So everybody looks forward to renewing old friendships and taking part in real holiday good cheer.

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATRE

Raymond Griffith makes a lot of fun out of it in his new picture "He's a Prince" now playing at the Keene Theatre tonight and Wednesday. The short features include the Keene News, Serial Novelty and a snappy comedy, "A Spanish Home" which is played with a snappy peppy musical program by Jimmie Connors and his orchestra.

Jackie Coogan's latest film offering is his like the clary film "Old Clothes" which had its initial showing at the Opera House yesterday.

Mercury Non-Magnetic

The Bureau of standards says that Mercury is one of the so-called non-magnetic elements and cannot be magnetized in the ordinary sense. As a matter of fact it is "dia magnetic" and when placed in a magnetic field carries fewer "lines of force" per unit of area than the space around it. The effect is very small, and very sensitive apparatus is necessary to measure it.

Noted Doctor to Speak Five Times

Dr. Winfield Scott Hall to Give Four Lectures Here Wednesday Under Auspices of Y. M. C. A. and Also to Address Rotarians.

DR. WINFIELD SCOTT HALL.

Dr. Winfield Scott Hall, head of the social hygiene department of the Presbyterian Church of the United States, will be in Kingston Wednesday.

Dr. Hall will speak to the high school student body at 8:40 in the morning, to the Rotary Club at 12:30 p. m., to the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. at 3:30 p. m., to the Hi-Y Club at 6:15 and the business men in the business men's rooms at 8 p. m.

Dr. Hall is one of the foremost physicians and lecturers of the continent. He was professor of biology in Haverford College from 1889 to 1893, professor of physiology in the Medical College of the North-western University for twenty-four years and the junior dean of the medical faculty of the University for several years.

At the present time he is professor emeritus and a recognized authority on the subjects upon which he speaks. He was president of the American Academy of Medicine in 1905, a member of the international congress on tuberculosis, a member of the National Council of Boy Scouts and identified with a score of similar organizations. He is the head of the social hygiene department of the board of temperance and moral welfare of the Presbyterian Church of the United States and spends much of his time on the public platform as a special lecturer.

The subjects which he presents are the most difficult but much needed. The following are the subjects of some of the lectures that he delivers most frequently: "Social Ethics," "Eugenics," "The Psychology of Youth and its Relation to Social Development," "Efficient Manhood," "The Making of an Athlete," "Father and Son," "Mother and Daughter," "Home and School."

These lectures afford a unique opportunity to hear by a man who is eminently qualified and a recognized authority. This is proved by the fact that he gave nine hundred and fifty-one lectures to an aggregate of more than 183,000 people.

Nutty Natural History

By HUGH HUTTON.

THE BURMESE JEWEL.

With shrill cries of "O-o-i-ke-vaud!" great swarms of these creatures rush into the cyclone cellars of the pagodas at the beginning of the rainy season, and eat up all the pumpernickel the natives have stored there. This is the true explanation of the annual famines in Burma. The wings of the jewel are on upside down, as it can converse with them in that position only, but when forced to fly, it has to go backwards with feet on top.

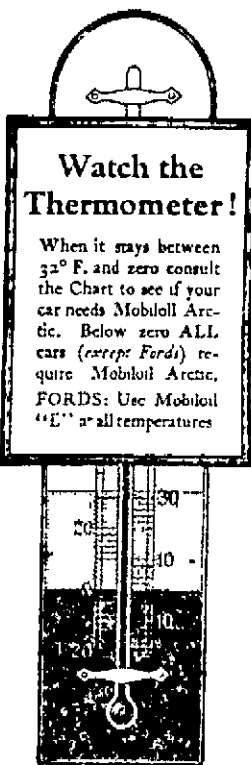

The individual pictured here is either conversing or about to hold it into service for flying purposes. A head nut for the body, a single peanut for the head, split lima beans and almond kernels for the wings and feet do for the most of it. Rice, corn, for rice, a clove nose, and common pins for feelers make up the rest.

Begging the Question

"Begging the question" is assuming a proposition which, in reality, involves the conclusion. Thus, to say that "parrots will never meet because they are parrots," is simply to assume as a fact the very thing that you propose to prove. A "circle" in logic is a vicious form of argument in which the conclusion is assumed to prove the premise, and then the premise is proved by the conclusion.

Long Prongs Give Better Contact
Principal Improvement.

F. M. RUSSELL.

The new tubes are now available at most dealers and many readers are asking just where they are better than the old type. The principle, and as far as I know the only difference lies in the fact that the new style tubes have longer prongs than the old type and enable a socket to be used that gives a positive contact. This is a very real improvement, for many of the troubles that affect a radio receiver are traced to poor contact between the contact springs on the socket and the prongs of the tube.

The illustration shows clearly the method used to make contact with both the new and old type tubes. You will note that contact is made by pressure in the old type. The bottom of the prong presses against the contact on the socket. This is not a particularly positive type of contact, especially if the tube is a loose fit in the socket. In addition, contact is made between the solder on the end of the prong and not between the brass prong itself. Solder oxidizes in time and sets up a high resistance joint which reduces the efficiency of the tube considerably.

The new tube has longer prongs and contact is made by rubbing against the side of the prong, insuring a positive contact between the socket and tube. If the tube is a loose fit in the socket it does not make much difference owing to the fact that contact between the prong and socket contacts are wiping contacts.

Care of Umbrellas

A shabby umbrella will spoil an otherwise perfect outfit. A much-used umbrella soon shows signs of wear. When this happens, it is a good idea to open the umbrella and sponge it with strong sweetened tea. The tea freshens the color and the sugar imparts a slight stiffness to the fabric. An umbrella that has been dropped in the mud and cannot be cleaned by ordinary brushing is best treated in the following way: After greasing the inside wires to prevent them rusting, the cover of the umbrella should be scrubbed with warm, soapy water. It should be rinsed in clear, cold water and hung, still open, in the sun to dry.

The Warning One

On the plains of the West thousands of cattle may be seen grazing as one. They move slowly, feeding as they go, their heads pointing in the same direction. Occasionally among the hundreds there will be one individual that ignores the custom of the others and feeds where it will. The cattlemen have learned through experience to look to such an animal for the salvation of the rest in times of emergency. When wild creatures attack or sudden storms break, the solitary feeder is one to give warning or lead the herd to safety.—Cornelia James Cannon in the Atlantic Monthly.

Ears That Tell Ages

To ascertain the age of a horse, if not too old it is usual to examine its teeth. To tell the age of a fish, regardless of age, you look into its ear. In the internal ear of a fish there is a little bone called an otolith, which grows about as the fish dips this way and that, and so helps it to know if it is right side up. As the fish grows older, says a writer in English Science, the otolith grows larger, and the age of the fish may be determined from its size.

Formalism About to Re-Enter Mode

Indications of Reaction as Popular Sports Vogue
Reaches Zenith.

Formalism is about to re-enter the mode as a result of the unprecedented extension of the sports vogue. Every new fashion begins as a heresy and ends in the midst of its apparent heyday, when it becomes known far and wide as an "essential." Glance back, says a Paris fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune, at the history of the mode as you remember it and notice how invariably tomorrow's vogue has been ridiculed the day before and principally by those who later became its most feverish exponents. What would your Victorian mother have said of the corsetless figures and short skirts of this enlightened day?—and don't you shudder when you think of the anguished comments of the pater familias. More recently consider the case of the straight line and the flare—the narrow silhouette had become a religion with couturier and milady alike, and it was bruited over the universe as the prime essential of the modern mode. Its freedom, its simplicity, its youth were destined to make it the basis of every new style—it was the only logical outline for the moderns, if you listened to the orations of its overenthusiasts. Despite all of which relentless logic the straight and narrow line has been succeeded by the flare, just as its companion-in-arms, eternal youth, which might better have been named perennial puerility, has gracefully surrendered to the charms of post-adolescence. And now a third movement, a result of these preceding two, but more tangible and more significant, is impending. Formalism, not yet Chatterboxian, but at least heading toward that gracious ideal, is slowly but distinctly replacing informality from the regions of fashion, and the sports mode is being retired to the limitations of its own field.

Sports Clothes.

Sports clothes originally were imposed upon Paris from the outside—they were only the foster children of the French couture, the result of a demand from London and New York. Yet they attained the quickest and widest vogue in the history of modern fashions, and the sports spirit quickly sought wider spheres than its own. And found them. At first it reached and conquered the domain of informal daytime clothes, after which formal afternoon frocks, and occasionally the mode in soir succumbed to its irresistible infection. You may remember Palm Beach and those Riviera villas, Nice, Monte Carlo and Cannes of last winter. The chic demostelles at these rendezvous wore the identical costume at the afternoon dancet or at dinner as they would wear and did wear at the tennis court. So similar were the styles worn at the different functions, so widespread had the spirit of infor-

Illustrate this newest tendency of the mode because that eminent designer never lost her sense of differentiation even in the most rampant moments of the sports vogue. Her anchor was the famous robe de style and it stood out in charming relief in last season's mode du soir.

New Swinging Silhouette.

In the Lanvin versions the flare translates itself into the new swinging silhouette, aptly called kinetic by the ingenious Lucien Lelong. The beauty of the swinging silhouette is revealed when its wearer is in motion, when the frock or coat swings with all the majestic grace of the lordly late-Victorian. There is not the accompanying wish which characterized that much-petticoated lady, but the gracefulness of the moving frock is easily greater than that of its prototypes of two decades ago. It doesn't belong in any part of the sports category, and so the flare may be considered one of the most eminent of the differentiators of fall fashions.

The hip-length peplum on dresses, the shoulder flare, the unusual use of metal laces, bead and metal embroideries, all of these featured on daytime costumes—emphasize the distinctly formal note. Even the perennial jumper is matured and sobered by being developed in metal laces and laces. And as a final distinction between this new formality and the informality of last season, the mantuquins wore black stockings—which would have been worse than heresy a year ago.

Obviously even a Lanvin cannot make the mode and we merely cite this collection as a straw that shows which way the modal winds are blowing. Resistances will inevitably develop and the march toward formalism may be slow and often impeded, nevertheless it requires no clairvoyant to sense its coming. And the lady who steps with fashion's advance guard will be heedful of its significance.

The full-skirted silhouette, the rising waistline and the replacement of embroidery by fur are prominent details of the collections which are outlined below. The first described is that of Gabrielle Chanel.

Chanel—Fur Trimming.

The details of the Chanel collection are unusual, and there are many new points in the outline. The latter shows a comfortable fullness in the skirts, back as well as front, but a liberal interpretation of the mode permits many things, even the straight line with a straight, slim corseage sometimes arranged in a zouave effect that is infinitely becoming and suggests a higher waistline.

Couts, whether straight or flared, are trimmed with fur. Many of them have a shaped fur sounce and wide collar and cuffs. Others are fur lined with still another suggestion of fur appearing on the outside. Mademoiselle Chanel has fallen a victim to the prevailing craze for dred fur and uses green molekin with much success.

Drecoli—The 1920 Mode.

Drecoli has long been justly celebrated for rich, dignified gowns such as are worn by women of unquestioned taste, and the present collection lives up to this reputation in every way. Simplicity, restraint and good taste are its marked characteristics with a distinct novelty in the tight-fitting corseages and strongly flared skirts that are a feature of several models.

Like most houses that study closely the requirements of modern existence, Drecoli is showing the jumper dress only for sports and morning wear. He makes it with a short full skirt into which circular pockets are built all around.

The high collar is being tentatively launched in this house but it remains to be seen whether women will be prepared to adopt it though it is in full harmony with the actually fitted corseage from which only the house is lacking to make it an exact counterpart of the style that prevailed in 1924.

Couts are often fitted to the waist, but are sometimes draped round the figure when cut straight.

finely pleated, but now that waistlines are admittedly good, chemises and costume slips follow the waist and skirt silhouette.

Among the daintier nightgowns are those which have a tiny pocket at the left side, this being either of lace or trimmed after the manner of the necktie. Insets of net are a dainty trimming which commends itself to the girl who likes daintiness but as well, a certain restraint.

Footings are effectively used on the hems of gowns which are not infrequently scalloped.

At the moment the newer lingerie is given to poke effects and to cut necklines. The pokes usually end under the bustline and serve as a braisiers. Fine colored cotton voile daintily colored is a favorite with French and apparently Italian lingerie makers, and no wonder, for it has much the effect of chiffon and can be had at a far less cost.

Annual Meeting of Pomona Grange

Officers Elected for ensuing Year—
Harry DeBois of Clintondale becomes New Deputy—Reports Show Subordinate Granges Prosperous.

The regular meeting of Ulster County Pomona Grange was held at Clintondale Grange Hall Friday, December 4, with Worthy Master C. E. Davis presiding.

After both written and verbal reports of the various subordinate Granges, Brother J. Wells Weaver, deputy, read his annual report. Each Grange has been visited once and several two and three times. He had driven over 1,200 miles at night in this work. According to the state secretary, Ulster county has made a gain of 104 members this year. Stone Ridge is the richest Grange, with its splendidly equipped hall and $900 in the treasury. Each of the 26 families of Wawarsing Grange take the National Grange Monthly, while of the 116 families represented in Stone Ridge 110 families subscribe to the paper. Many Grange events have taken place, fairs, fruit exhibits, plays, etc.

Deputy Weaver warmly commended the home economics committee for their fine work and held Lake Katrine up as an example for its pleasant custom of showering its newly married couples, six happy pairs having been thus honored.

After having partaken of a truly bounteous and delicious dinner furnished by Clintondale Grange, the following were obligated in the fifth degree: Frank Lozier by demit from Orange County Pomona, Mabel Sabler, Idella Sears, Elizabeth Shaw, David C. Reilly, Robert Service, Mary Service, all of Lake Katrine, Evelyn Nance, Huguenot Grange.

Miss Nance, the new Home Bureau manager, was introduced and spoke briefly.

Worthy Master Davis then called upon the Farm Bureau Agent, Brother Wigsten, saying no Pomona meeting was complete without a word from him.

It was announced that the Kingston Chamber of Commerce in an effort to get acquainted with Grange officers and try to bring about a better understanding between the city and the country would hold an informal dinner in December to which the master and secretary of each subordinate Grange in the county would be invited.

Delegates to State Grange, to be held at Watertown in February were appointed as follows: Delegate at-large, A. E. Jansen, New Paltz; Ross K. Osterhoudt, Stone Ridge; Sister Frances Lane, Mt. Tremper; William C. Cotton, Asbury, Sister Eva Starr, Highland.

The following officers were elected to serve for two years: Master, Harold V. Story, Ulster Park, overseer, Ira Thompson, Plattkill, lecturer, Irving C. Barnes, New Paltz, steward, Russell Martin, Milton, assistant steward, Clarence Finger, Asbury, chaplain, Sister Edith Hardburgh, Stone Ridge, treasurer, Frank Terhune, Clintondale, secretary, Sister Mary Brink, Lake Katrine, gatekeeper, Cortland Tice, Spring Glen, Flora Katherine L. Hart, Lake Katrine, Pomona, Helen C. Taber, Milton, Ceres, Phoebe Aldorf, Clintondale, lady assistant, Lenz H. Clarke, Milton, finance committee, A. E. Jansen and Brother Bogart.

Brother J. Wells Weaver, having served as deputy for five years, declined re-nomination and Brother Harry DeBois of Clintondale being well versed in Grange work was recommended as the new deputy.

The Grange adjourned to meet at New Paltz in March.

"According to Hoyle"

The expression "according to Hoyle" is due to Edward Hoyle, a writer on the game of whist. He was born in England in 1805 and died in 1885. He was a famous whist player and his book "The Game of Whist" was a standard authority on the game.

How Ander Got Name

The origin of the name Ander is unknown for certain. Many theories have been advanced by different authorities. It has been variously supposed to be derived from the Persian word "anda," meaning tapir; "anti," meaning metal or copper; and "Andia," the name of a tribe living in the mountains; or from the Spanish "Andes," applied to the gardens on the terraces which occur on the western slopes of the Andes in Chile. Humboldt believed the meaning of "Andes" is lost. One writer noted the interesting fact that the Hindus in north India called the Himalayas by the name of Andes—Pathinder Nagzide.

How to Fight Mosquitoes

In fighting the mosquitoes in the South, a public health official hit upon the idea of saturating swamps with oil composed of kerosene and waste crank case oil. The swamps were then covered over the troublesome water or swamp just as a farmer would sow grain in a short time it becomes waterlogged and sinks, leaving a film of oil on the swamp or water. As the ground weed continues to give off the oil for several days the film is renewed during that time.

Palmolive Shaving Cream

to give you the SUPREME in shaving comfort

Here is a remarkable offer we are making. An offer so costly to us that in a few days we must withdraw it.

To share in it, you must act at once. For not only is there a time limit, but your dealer has been limited to a certain quantity. When it runs out, he can get no more for you. Don't wait to come till after his stock is gone.

We make it to attract men who are wedded to other shaving creams to give Palmolive Shaving Cream a fair trial. And to give regular users of Palmolive Shaving Cream another Palmolive comfort.

An After Shaving Talc

Which avoids that "powdered" look

Now we have created Palmolive After Shaving Talc. A powder made especially for men with many advantages you'll delight in.

A powder that takes away that after-shave shine; yet that's invisible on the face. A powder that avoids that "powdered" look.

Not an ordinary talc. But a talc that matches the excellence of Palmolive Shaving Cream. That meets gentlemen's ideals of good grooming; that combats skin roughness and leaves the skin both smooth and fresh.

An amazing shaving cream

Palmolive Shaving Cream, as you know, is a unique creation—an amazing shaving cream.

We started by asking 1000 men what they most desired in a shaving cream.

Then step by step—by making and testing 130 formulas—we met their desires to the utmost.

The result is a new attainment, superior we believe in 5 important ways to any shaving cream you have ever known. It will give you a new conception of what shaving cream can do.

Men have welcomed it as they have never welcomed anything in this field. Millions have changed from old-type shaving creams. 80% of the men who use it were won from rival makes. Palmolive Shaving Cream, in a few years, has become the leader of the world.

Textor Talk on Ancient Poland

Period of Captivity and Liberation
Described in Lecture for The Monday Club—Poland's Greatness Related.

On Monday Dr. Textor, who is lecturing each week for the Monday Club at the Chapel of the first Dutch Church, had as her subject, "Poland: Period of Captivity and Liberation." Dr. Textor stated that it was not until the tenth century that Poland became a state. Before that time it was made up of tribes, ruled by chiefs, almost purely of Slav origin. In fact the people of Poland pride themselves that they are the most nearly pure Slav of any people on the earth.

After Poland became a state among other states of Europe, there was a theory that it belonged to the royal family, the king being chosen from the royal family. But this led to there being many warring families of royalty. From about the middle of the thirteenth century the Poles began to realize that they were being hard pressed between two great enemies, the Germans on the one side and the Tartars on the other. In order to maintain their power, they decided that it was best to ally themselves with their strong neighbors, the Lithuanians, and this alliance lasted from about 1386 to 1572. This proved to be particularly strong alliance and is considered as the period of Poland's greatness, especially in architecture and literature. It was followed by a period of decline.

One Veto Killed Measure

In the 16th century, there was a sort of tradition that every noble, no matter whether possessed of wealth or not, had a vote in the government of the country. This was known as the period of the "Free veto," for no measure could be passed if one noble vetoed it.

As a result Poland was practically without government. In order to relieve this situation the country looked to Russia, Germany, Prussia and even to France for a king. Sometimes there were as many as eighteen non-Poles candidates for the throne and civil war was prevalent a good part of the time.

Early in the seventeenth century, Poland united with Sweden and invaded Russia, unsuccessfully.

Dividing Poland

In the eighteenth century Russia, Prussia and Austria all tried to get control of Poland. Finally Russia won to the extent of getting what might be called the outer rim of Poland, the "First Partition" taking place in 1772, but with no reasonable reason for such a happening. Dr. Textor described the vast wealth of some of the nobles of this period, the extreme poverty of the serfs and the considerable fairly well-to-do middle class of Jews, mostly. The Second Partition came about 1792 during the reign of Catherine the Great of Russia, when an inner rim of Poland was divided between Russia and Prussia. An effort was made to withstand this foreign aggression but with many of the Polish nobles living in France, it was futile. Nor did Napoleon or Alexander of Russia improve conditions in Poland.

When Insurrection Failed

Dr. Textor was of the opinion that the insurrection of 1862 might have been successful had the nobility had the wisdom and been unselfish enough to free all of the serfs and enroll them into a united Polish army. As they did not do this, the Russianization of Poland continued.

grasping as to estates there, for these estates were not taken over and occupied by the Prussians and in due time were turned back to the Poles.

The German Colonization

From 1907 to 1909 came the period of the great German colonization when the Polish people were forced even to adopt the German language and to give up teaching any Polish in the schools, resulting in that tremendous strike of the Polish school children.

Dr. Textor then took up the history of Poland during the world war, which finally culminated in a free and united Poland at last.

Dr. Textor's lecture next week will be on "Present Day Poland."

Common Word "Fiasco"

Borrowed From Italy

The word "fiasco" has become current coin in English speech, though it is doubtful if many who use it know that it is an Italian word meaning bottle. Several accounts have been given of why an immediate failure is called a bottle. A correspondent of "Notes and Queries" wrote in 1863: "Some years since, Signor V. Filadelfo, professor of Italian at King's college, gave me the following derivation. A gentleman visiting an Italian glass manufacturer was struck with the apparent simplicity of the work, so he asked permission to try his hand at glass-blowing but found the operation more difficult than it looked and the only thing he was able to produce was the common black (fiasco). The startled workmen crowded around him, and greeted each successive failure with laughter and the cry of 'Altro fiasco! altro fiasco!' (Another fiasco)—Ex-change.

SCHOOL DAYS

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

By F. A. WALKER

FINDING THE LIGHT

THE pine that makes the lofty mast, has its birth in the lowly sod. Nurtured by the kindly sun and showers. It grows to a towering tree of beauty and strength.

Pushing away in the beginning of life, the moss and the moldy leaves of the forest that threaten to smother it, the tender little shoot resolutely keeps on and rising to find the light.

In the struggle and growth of this fragrant evergreen, if you will ponder a while, you may find "something to think about," for a long time.

In a certain sense, mental operations are first cousins to physical operations, differing greatly in different periods of life and in different individuals.

But the far-reaching process of mental development is the more important, responsible as it is for the advancement of everything that has a bearing upon human existence and the progress of nations.

Growth of the tree is mere increase in girth and height; mental development consists of structural changes of intellect, including power of attention, sense-capacity, reproductive faculty, imagination, conceptual power and reasoning faculty, neither of which can be had without first finding the light.

Among the drones and drolls, there is a great reluctance to face the broad day.

They prefer the sombrous shade and the midlow of the dank forest to the clear sky and the inspiring sun, wasting their precious years in ignorance. Their growth is like that of the tree, physical, rather than mental.

After attaining their girth and height, they comprehend fully that they are in no way fitted to compete with those who have developed their mental faculties.

It is then, alas! too late to find a place among the masterful, high-minded young men and women who through hard work have trained their hands to write their names in high places, where always the light blazes like noonday, and the songs of victory ring in the clean, sweet air from dawn till dark.

Being alive is as nothing, if you do not live in the light, where you can expand mentally, become useful and able to grapple with the great, weighty questions which affect not only yourself but all mankind, perhaps for ages to come.

Lowly Ant Sensitive to Weather Changes

That the lowly ant is as sensitive to heat and to cold as human beings, and that the ant prefers his temperature not too hot and not too cold, is shown by a report from D. F. Miller and M. Gans of Ohio State university, in the Journal of Comparative Psychology.

A group of ants in going to and from their nest were found to traverse a certain path on the face of a stone. On one side of this path a covered electric light bulb was placed to serve as a source of controlled heat. On the other side was placed a brine coil inclosed in an iron can, from which a draught of cold air could be made to cross the path.

The closer the source of heat was placed to the path, the more the ants deviated in passing this spot. With the heat turned off and the cold draught operating, the ants again deviated in passing the spot which was cold.

The hot rays from the sun were found to be as effective as the artificial heat. At noon, when the sun's rays beat directly down upon the path of the ants, they sought to avoid the heat by deviating, but, finding it impossible to dodge the heat in this manner, they spread up their wings and simply ran away from the heat—Washington Star.

THE MEASURE OF LOVE

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

I WANT my loving near enough To love the things at home; For I have seen a lot of love That only loved to roam. I want my love to think a chair At my own fireside far more fair Than any pedestal or throne That any other man may own.

I want my loving large enough To love my neighbor, too; For I have seen a lot of love That only loved a few. I want my love to seek men out And give them love when they doubt, Love not alone the rich man's feast, But love them most who love the least.

I want my loving true enough To love and never tire; For I have seen a lot of love That only loved to smile. I want my love to still be kind Although unkindness it may find, I want my love so truly given It cannot fail this side of heaven.

I want my loving real enough To travel every mile; For I have seen a lot of love That only loved to smile. I want my love to life endure And keep me glad and keep me pure, A love so holy, love so vast, My love will save me at the last. (© 1925, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

WHAT TO EAT

SOME evening when you can't think of anything for supper, try: Hot Ham Sandwiches.

Chop cold boiled ham very fine—the amount depends upon the number to be served. Add enough creamed butter to make a paste, season with mustard and cayenne and spread on slices of buttered bread. Beat an egg slightly, add one-half cupful of milk and a little salt. Dip the sandwiches into the egg and fry in a little butter until brown on both sides.

Chopped Steak on Casserole. Put two cupfuls of finely chopped steak in a well-buttered casserole, season with celery, salt, pepper, mushroom and tomato catsup or Worcestershire. Surround the steak with rice, pour over two cupfuls of water boiling hot, and bake for an hour and a half in a moderate oven. Keep covered while cooking. Serve with tomato sauce or brown gravy.

Purée of Pea Soup. Rub a cupful of peas through a sieve, add a pint of milk, a tablespoonful of finely minced parsley, a bit of onion. Bind with a tablespoonful each of flour and butter well blended and cooked together; season well and serve with cream.

Corn Flake Macaroons. Beat the whites of two eggs until stiff, add one cupful of sugar, one cupful each of cornflakes and coconut, two tablespoonfuls of flour, salt and vanilla. Drop by teaspoonfuls on baking sheets and bake in a moderate oven.

Popcorn Macaroons. Chop fine one cupful of freshly popped corn, also one cupful of walnut meats. Beat the whites of three eggs until stiff, then add one-half pound of powdered sugar, the nuts and the popcorn. Drop by spoonfuls on baking sheets and bake in a moderate oven 20 minutes.

"Elements"

The term element was first given the modern meaning by Robert Boyle, an English scientist, who lived from 1627 to 1691. Certain of the elements, however, were known to the ancient alchemists, but their conception was not clear.

Present and Absent

A curious instance of Israel Zangwill's absent-mindedness came to my notice the other day. He was rehearsing one of his plays at the Scala, and arrived punctual to the minute on the stage. Taking up his position he opened the prompt copy and addressed an empty stage as follows: "I am here to the minute. Why is it that no member of my company can be as punctual?" At that moment his stage manager, who had been searching for him, put in an appearance, and gently reminded him that the rehearsal was in the foyer, where the entire company was already waiting for him.—London Mail.

Settle French Debt in 30 Days

Paris, Dec. 8.—Settlement of the French debt to the United States will be practically realized in thirty days. Finance Minister Loucheur today informed directors of banks of credit establishments of France in appealing to them for aid in improving the stability of the franc. "I would like to see the ground clearing equivalent to 110 francs before the end of the month," M. Loucheur told the directors. "I want the dollar to be worth twenty-two francs. I appeal to you to concentrate your efforts toward that goal."

Duchess of Fontanges

Marie Angélique, Duchess of Fontanges, was the successor to Marie Montesson in the favor of Louis XIV. "She was beautiful as an angel, but silly as a goose," said Abbe Choisi of her. She nevertheless captivated the affections of Louis XIV, who was tired of Mme. de Montespan. As soon as she had discovered the passion she had inspired in the king, she became haughty and extravagant, spending at times as much as 200,000 crowns a month. She became the general dispenser of the king's favors and the model of fashion. She was made a duchess by the king, but did not long enjoy the rank, since she died at the age of twenty. RADIO

Four-Tube Radio Receiver Employing Three Stages of Tuned Radio Frequency Amplification With Low Loss Doughnut Coils

The most out of the smallest amount of apparatus is the goal most set builders are striving for, applying particularly to receiving sets that are intended for portable use, where space and weight are important factors to be considered.

The combination of the reflex type of circuit and the newly perfected low loss doughnut type of coil is ideal. The reflex circuit is especially desirable for the saving of tubes, and the doughnut coils for their high efficiency and low losses combined with the fact that they may be placed at almost any position in the receiver, consistent with a saving of space. Ordinary coils must be placed at critical angles and at a conservative distance from each other, in order to minimize the magnetic spraying effect from the ends of the coils.

Advantage That Is Important

The low loss doughnut coils possess another advantage that is very important in radio frequency receivers. Low distributed capacity. This is gained by a peculiar winding construction used, where the wire is indented at regular intervals, preventing adjacent wires from running parallel to each other. This fact alone gives a receiver greater volume and tone quality than is obtained with ordinary larger wound coils.

The circuit described in this article is similar to that of a neutrodyne or tuned radio frequency receiver with the exception that three stages of radio frequency (one reflexed), crystal detector, and two stages of audio frequency (one reflexed) is obtained with only four tubes. No balancing or neutralizing condensers are necessary when low loss doughnut coils are used for there will be no stray magnetic fields to interact and cause the receiver to break into oscillation.

Parts Needed.
To construct the receiver you will need the following list of apparatus:
One low loss doughnut coupler
Two low loss doughnut coil transformers
Three low loss, straight line frequency variable condensers of 0005 mfd capacity.
Four standard vacuum tube sockets.
One radio frequency reflex transformer
Four 25 ohm rheostats, if UV 201-A or C 301-A tubes are used.
One each of the following sizes of fixed condensers: 00025 mfd, .001 mfd and .002 mfd.
One fixed or adjustable crystal detector
One phone jack
Binding posts, wire screws, etc.

The receiver can be assembled on a 7 by 24 inch panel with a 7 by 23 inch baseboard or the panel can be of any convenient size to fit into a carrying case for portable use. The space required for the three variable condensers is the only limiting factor in the construction of a small receiver with this hookup. The coils may be mounted upright or flat, above or below the baseboard or subpanel.

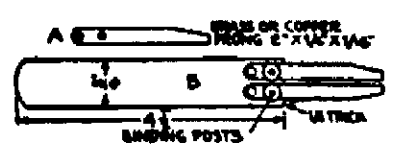

Wiring Done Underneath.
In the later types of receivers most of the wiring is done underneath the subpanel to improve the appearance of the set, and to shorten the leads. The low loss doughnut coils may be mounted in a horizontal position below the subpanel in this set if there is not sufficient room above.

It is advisable to use the C 301-A type of tubes throughout, with this receiver, with a storage battery to light the filaments and about 90 volts of "B" battery. As a crystal detector is used, there will be no need for a grid leak and condenser or a detector tube.

An Electric Soldering Iron Is Made of Scraps

Soldering up a radio outfit is quite a job unless you have a good soldering iron, and nothing beats the electric type. To heat an iron in gas consumes a lot of time and for the man in a small town without gas or electricity it is a bug-a-boo. To make an electric iron out of a few scraps and two blinding posts—

Take two pieces of brass or copper about 2 inches long and 3/4 inch wide, shape and drill two holes in them as shown in figure A. Fasten each to handle made of wood, fiber or bakelite.

Only Few Scraps Needed to Make Electric Soldering Iron.

Use. Handle is 4 1/2 inches long and 3/4 inch wide. Use one screw and one metal binding post for each prong as in second drawing. Prongs should be 3/4 inch apart.

Connect with twisted light wire to 6-volt battery. To operate, put soldering solution on joint and lay a small piece of solder on it. Touch both prongs to joint, thereby causing momentary short circuit. This will cause joint to heat and solder will flow. Current is consumed only during use.—Radio Digest.

Care of Dry Batteries to Prolong Their Life

A dry battery will not stand much abuse. If it is accidentally dropped its internal connections are liable to be broken or the sealing compound on its top might become cracked, through which moisture can seep, causing a leakage between cells which act as a continual drain on the battery. If dust accumulates on the top of the battery wipe it off with a dry cloth, never with a wet rag, as this, too, will cause a drain or leakage between the terminals until such time as the moisture evaporates. Metal articles, such as trays, chains, metal pencils, etc., if placed on a battery will cause a possible short circuit.

What Radio Means

The word "radio" comes from the Latin "radius" and means in this sense the giving off, or radiating, of energy in every direction. From the broadcasting station energy is sent out in all directions in the form of electromagnetic waves into the ether, as invisible medium filling all space.

RADIO RHYMES

By ROBERT S. SUTLIFF

I WENT into a Radio store and I looked at sets and horns galore, about two dozen kinds or more—to make a start; I told the clerk I nothing knew 'bout what to buy or what to do, to get good entertainment through the Radio art. I didn't want to get in deep, just wanted something simple—cheap, an outfit any one could keep—no work for me; some little thing to please the folks, to sing us songs and tell us jokes, to run with simple turns and pokes—from troubles free.

"This is the place," the fellow said, "don't be by any one misled, for Radio outfits we're ahead; we treat you white; don't throw away your time and cash, by fooling with some simple trash, get something good and cut a dash, start going right. The simple sets are naught but toys, all right for little girls and boys, who only want to get a noise from near at hand; the thing you need is 'Number Eight,' it's Radio in the perfect state, from Mountaintop to Golden Gate you'll hear the band."

They say there's one born every minute, I fell and found myself deep in it, I want the limit to begin it, with that set; more than a hundred plunks I paid to get reception of high grade, but a mechanic, I'm afraid, I'll have to get.

There is a moral in this telling for those with minds on Radio dwelling:—The folks who others are excellent, who win fame, are those who work while they are winning, who take it easy in beginning, but when they strike the old ninth inning, know the game.

Concerning Loop Aerials

Loop aerials must be rotatable because they are directional; that is, they receive best in the direction in which the sides point. To cover stations in all parts of the country then, the frames must be capable of being swung in those directions.

Repairing Howl

In case you are bothered with a howling sound in the loudspeaker, try placing the speaker farther from the set. The vibrations of the speaker may be causing the tubes to "ring."

Negligence Action Taken Up for Trial in Supreme Court Resulting From Accident on Rondout Creek Bridge.

The trial of the negligence action brought by Nicholas Schwartz, administrator, etc., of Alexander Schwartz, against Frank and Alice Filsinger was taken up for trial in the supreme court this morning. The action is brought to recover damages for the death of the little boy who was killed when he was struck by defendant's car at the Port Even end of the Rondout Creek Bridge on April 15, last. Alexander was 5 years old and had gone with his mother and several other women for a walk across the bridge. When at the Port Even, it was testified that he had gone across the roadway to the west side of the road at the request of his mother and it was while standing there that he was struck by the car which was coming from the direction of Kingston.

After the boy crossed the road witnesses for plaintiff testified they saw him near the edge of the roadway as the car approached and after the car had passed he had disappeared. The body was carried up the road some distance and then dropped from the car. Frank Filsinger, who drove the car, turned his car around and came back to the scene and rushed the lad to the hospital, where it was found he had died of a fracture of the skull.

FOSTER'S MARKET REVIEW IS A HIT

An exhaustive but by no means exhausting review of farm produce market conditions for the week, in state and nation, is broadcasted by Station W G Y each Monday evening as part of a farm program. This review is the earliest one covering the preceding week that is given to the public. It is prepared and broadcasted by Frederick E. Foster, secretary of the State Department of Agriculture and Markets who was for several years a member of The Freeman staff. Mr. Foster possesses the rare ability to make a market review interesting to even those who have no direct interest in the sale of farm produce and give information to those who have such interest.

Cabinet Approves Loucheur's Plan

Paris, Dec. 8.—The cabinet today unanimously approved Finance Minister Loucheur's seven point financial project.

The financial program will probably be laid before the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon. M. Loucheur's financial project aims at balancing the budget through the increase of taxation, but whether his proposals for tax increases will be acceptable to the Chamber remains to be seen. The Briand government has only a variable majority in the chamber as was shown by the vote on the inflation measure last week, and there is much doubt as to whether this majority can be held in line for the passage of the financial measure.

The first point in the seven point program deals with increase in taxation. It is estimated by the finance minister that the proposed tax program will bring in a revenue of four billion francs, which it is hoped will be sufficient to balance the budget.

The second point in the program provides for the creation of a sinking fund.

Spaniard Gets Credit for the Frankfurter

What is a hot dog? Well, it is mostly bull; bull meat mixed with pork, highly spiced, steam cooked and smoked over hickory smoke. It originated in Bologna, Spain, so long ago that only the main facts may be recalled. They used to slaughter an enormous number of bulls in the arenas of Spain in days when bullfighting was more popular and more brutal than it is today.

It looked like a great economic crime to see so much prize beef wasted. But nobody wanted bull beef just so; bulls are tough and not so delicious as cows and steers are. A butcher in Bologna had an idea and bought bulls that were killed in the bull ring and made the meat into a sausage, mixed with pork and highly seasoned. Bologna sausage appealed to the popular taste.

German soldiers borrowed the formula, put the same sausage mixture into small casings and Bologna became "Frankfurter" in Frankfurt and "Weenie" in Vienna. Coney Island gave it the name of hot dog and popularized it.

One stand in Coney Island that has been selling hot dogs for half a century is reputed to have a sale of five to ten tons of Frankfurters a day in the busy season. Somebody has to sell a lot of 'em to get rid of that 400,000,000 pounds a year.—Coilliers Magazine.

Confidence in Self

Man's Biggest Asset
Life is an island, entirely surrounded by risks, losses, troubles, hardships and misadventures of all sorts.

Most men go to pieces when they have had a few beatings. They wilt. They fade away. They crawl into a safe little corner and hide, while the great rough tide of glorious life rushes past them.

The fact is that defeat is the normal thing in this haphazard little world, and victory comes but seldom. Every victory, usually, is the result of a long series of defeats.

A man must have faith in himself and in what he is trying to do. He must say: "I can." He must back himself to win. He must bet on himself. He must have faith in the people he works with. He must believe in his team. He must see the better side of his co-workers and not think that his own point of view is the only right one.

He must have faith in those great principles that make us superior to the animals of the forest—in Truth, Honesty, Sympathy, Justice, Progress.—Forbes Magazine.

Round the World Paddler Drowned

Brewer, Maine, Dec. 8.—Rudolph Roehrl's attempt to paddle around the world in a canoe ended in his death, according to word received here today from Baltimore, Md. His body came ashore near Baltimore, the sailor having been caught in a gale.

SOCIETY NOTES

Scheblinski-Klein.

Andrew A. Scheblinski of No. 44 Jarrod street and Miss Margaret Elizabeth Klein of No. 322 Hasbrouck avenue were united in marriage on Sunday, December 6, by the Rev. J. P. Neumann of St. Peter's Church. The best man was Albert Klein, a brother of the bride, and the bridesmaid was Miss Bertha Klein, a sister of the bride. Both bride and groom are popular young folks and have the well wishes of a host of friends.

Sorosis.

Sorosis met on Monday afternoon with Mrs. H. P. Van Wageningen at her home on John street. The paper for the day was given by Mrs. Church who most interestingly told of "Unearthing our Ancestors." Mrs. Church went back to the days of Indian history in this country and then brought her narrative down to the present time, closing with a recital of "The Star Spangled Banner." Mrs. William Kemble gave a valuable report of her attendance at the State Federation meeting. Next week Sorosis will meet at 8 o'clock in the evening with Mrs. Graham at her home on Janet street for an "Old Fashioned Christmas Party." Each club member will be privileged to invite one guest.

His First Birthday.

Master Mark O. L. Cornwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Cornwell, celebrated his first birthday on Monday afternoon at the family home, No. 53 St. James street, with a birthday party to which a number of friends had been invited. The house was artistically decorated for the occasion, the color scheme being red and green. During the afternoon games were played by the little tots and delectable refreshments were served. There was a large birthday cake with one large red candle in the center. Each child present was presented with a Santa Claus and the mothers with red carnations. In the games that were played first prizes were won by Marie Shadler, Helen O'Meara and Margaret Van Steenburgh, while the booby prizes were won by Jennie Kittle and "Bobby" Macleod. Master Mark was the recipient of a number of useful and artistic gifts in memory of the occasion. Among the guests present were Helen O'Meara, Margaret Van Steenburgh, Mildred Barringer, Jennie Kittle, Mrs. Ephraim Yempe, Mrs. Ernest Shadler and daughters, Eleanor and Marie, Mrs. Harold L. Van Deusen and son, Robert Gray Van Deusen, Mrs. Harry Carnright and daughter, Thelma, Mrs. Richard O'Hernaux and daughter, Marion, Mrs. George Smith and son, George, Jr., Mrs. Fred Hoffman and daughter, Virginia, Mrs. Clyde Raeloot and son, Robert and Mrs. Lawrence Caster.

DIED.

MEENAHAN—At the home of his brother, Edward Meenahan, 277 Sackett street, Brooklyn, N. Y., Sunday, December 6, 1925, James J. Meenahan.

Funeral from the West Shore Railroad depot on Wednesday, December 9, upon the arrival of the 11:05 a. m. train, thence to St. Joseph's Church, where a requiem Mass will be celebrated for the repose of his soul. Relatives and friends invited. Interment in the family plot in St. Mary's Cemetery.

PALEN—Hugh Palen died at his home, 215 Foxhall avenue, December 7, 1925, aged 65 years.

Funeral services will be held at his home Thursday, December 10, at 10 o'clock. Relatives and friends invited. Interment in Fairview cemetery.

SINBAUGH—In this city, at residence, 46 H. street, December 6, 1925, Mary E. Sutton, wife of Daniel W. Sinbaugh.

Funeral at the Trinity M. E. Church, Warrenton street, on Wednesday at 2 p. m. Relatives and friends are invited. Interment in Montrose Cemetery.

In loving memory of our dear mother who departed this life one year ago today, December 8, 1924. Precious mother, she has left us. Left us, yes, forever more. But we hope to meet our loved one On that bright and happy shore. Lonely the house and sad the hours. Since our dear one has gone. But oh! a brighter home than ours In Heaven is now her own. Signed.

Artistic Motifs in Latest Silks

Architecture and Painting Are Used for Designs of Dress Materials.

It seems a far look into the future to consider the new dress materials as they come from the ateliers of their authors, says a Paris fashion authority in the New York Times.

Last year it was the iron work of Brandt from which were taken the graceful lines of the "Feronier" crepes and chiffons, of which the smartest summer styles were made and which are still popular for the softer frocks, negligees, linings and scarfs. The success of these was so concrete and far-reaching that the artists have gone again into great buildings for their inspiration. They have found it in the stained glass windows of cathedrals, cloisters and classic assembly halls and have established their first examples in models at the Paris exposition.

These Vitraux d'Art created by Mme. Jean Ferres express in the colored metal and leaded lines the ultra modern, futuristic form of design and this scheme entire has been transferred to the silks that come from American looms. They have been adapted with the greatest latitude in patterns and of colors, attaining results never visualized by their authors.

Reversing sharply the bright, sometimes violent colors of the last seasons, these new silks will bring back the pastel shades, with more vitality. The first things for spring, brought out to meet the requirements of the Palm Beach season, will be done in the most entrancing violets, mauves, greens and turquoise blue. In some of the floral designs, the most delicate and the richest of all the motifs, an occasional note is introduced in the vivid Russian colors, with a startling and artistic effect. In these floral designs there is a great variety. Some are large with the conventional flowers and leaves one sees in ecclesiastical embroideries. Some have dainty, quaint little posies sprinkled over delicately tinted backgrounds. Others are printed in flowered borders. One distinct achievement of the dyes, who said at first it could not be done, is the tinting of the background of crepes and chiffons. For example, a pattern of pink roses and pastel leaves is printed on a field of the palest rose tint. One of purple passion flowers on a ground of pale lavender, and so on through all the gorgeously colored garden, pictured in these fabrics of exquisite texture.

Straightline Frock Is Still Favored Fashion

Frocks may come and frocks may go, but apparently the little straight-line frock is destined to go on forever. For business wear, for shopping and for general all-around wear, nothing has ever succeeded in taking its place in the hearts of the feminine wearers.

Now that the winter days are upon us, one sees this simple dress in increasing numbers. And since color is to play such an important part this season, these frocks feature the most lovely shades of brown, green, beige, and many tones of blue. When worn with small hats of matching felt the effect is decidedly smart.

A delightful little model of black velvet has circular pieces inserted at the sides to give a little extra fullness, and elegant sleeves that are long and slightly open at the wrist. The neck finishes with long ends that may be worn either loose and flowing or tied, as the wearer desires.

Another complete frock is of tulle and has arrow-head shaped plaques at the neck trimmed in velvet and white. The neck is finished with a little white collar and there are narrow matching cuffs. Inserted plaques are a popular form of trimming upon these day dresses.

Labor to Favor 48 Hour Bill

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 8.—Two score leading members of the New York State Federation of Labor met in Albany today to draft a program which the federation will back at the 1926 session of the legislature.

James P. Holland, president of the federation, presided. It was expected many suggestions offered by John M. O'Hanlon, legislative representative of the federation, would be adopted.

It was announced the federation would advocate the passage of a 48 hour bill for women and minors in industry and an exclusive state fund for workmen's compensation insurance.

Officers of the federation will call on Governor Smith tomorrow and go over their legislative program with him.

Congressmen Criticise Message

Washington, Dec. 8.—President Coolidge transmitted his legislative recommendations to the new Sixty-ninth Congress today on a score of important issues, ranging from the World Court to tax reduction, and before its reading had been concluded in either house members were criticizing it in the cloak rooms and lobbies.

It was one of the most colorless "message days" in years. It was the first time in years that an annual message had not been delivered in person by the president, and lacking the presidential presence, the galleries were only partly filled.

The contrast was marked between today and former message days when the president personally addressed a joint session of the two houses, when the galleries were filled with diplomats and notables, and the cabinet and supreme court were clustered in the well of the chamber.

In the Senate the apathy was particularly marked. It was a lengthy message, requiring an hour and a quarter's reading from the clerk, and long before it was concluded members strolled out of the Chamber. When it was finished, soon after 1 o'clock, there were only half a hundred senators left in their seats.

In the house there was the same lack of color and drama. Members strolled in and out as the droning voice of the reading clerk tolled out the message. Some read newspapers and a few openly napped. The presidential box was empty for the first time in years on such an occasion, and in the diplomatic gallery, where ambassadors and ministers used to crowd on message days, there sat one lone attaché of a minor European power.

The favor of the message was unmarked by applause until the end, and then it was perfunctory.

The president's recommendations struck a varying response from members. Virtually all Democrats and Republicans alike, approved portions of the message, but few, even of the president's own party, approved in its entirety.

On tax reduction, however, the approval was whole-hearted and virtually unanimous. The Democrats generally, and the administration Republicans, approved the president's recommendations for American admission to the World Court, but the old "irreconcilables" and insurgent Republicans heartily disapproved of it.

LOCAL DEATH RECORD.

Recent Deaths and Funerals of Persons in This Vicinity.

Hugh Palen died at his home, 215 Foxhall avenue, on Monday, aged 65 years. He is survived by his wife and four sons. Funeral services at his home on Thursday at 10 a. m., with interment in Fairview Cemetery, Stone Ridge.

Services were held Monday evening at the Elks' Club for Conrad W. Fentz of Waterbury, Conn., a member of Newburgh Lodge, who died at Waterbury last Friday. The Rev. William J. Nelson, of the Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, officiated. A number of members of the Newburgh Lodge were present, including the exalted ruler and Secretary David W. Jagger. Members of the Masonic quartet of this city were present at the services and sang. Funeral services were held this afternoon from 46 Maiden Lane, with interment in Wilkwyck Cemetery.

In the passing of the late John Meick, Whiteport has lost one of her oldest residents, he having lived there for fifty-five years, thirty eight of which he was employed as blacksmith for the Doremus Cement Company. He was a good husband and father, a faithful member of the consistency of the Bloomsdale Church, which he delighted to attend as long as his health permitted. He had been ill a long time, but bore his suffering with Christian fortitude and when the final summons came, he was prepared to go. His happy disposition made many friends, by whom he will be greatly missed.

LUTHERAN CHURCH OF REDEEMER MEN'S CLUB

The Men's Club of the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Wurts and Rogers street, the Rev. William J. Nelson pastor will meet this evening. Judge Joseph M. Fowler and W. M. Spaackel of Rochester will be the principal speakers.

Following the session a treat is in store when the ladies of the congregation serve a pancake lunch. All members and friends are cordially invited to attend.

"SPIRITUALIST" WAS SOLD A CHURCH

Worcester, Mass., Dec. 8.—A mass of evidence alleged to prove fraud against eight local mediums, accused by a woman detective, was turned over to a chief of Police Hill.

The woman detective, posing as an ardent spiritualist, was ordained and purchased the Holy Spiritualist Church on an investment of $10, it was stated.

DELIVERS ADDRESS AT PUTNAM SCHOOL OPENING

District superintendent John T. Gillette of Fort Ewen delivered the dedicatory address at the opening of the new school building in District No. 4, town of Putnam Valley, Putnam county, Sunday afternoon. It was in this district that Mr. Gillette was born and first attended school. He also taught in this school district for three consecutive years before entering the Normal School at New Paltz. While there he was the pupil of James H. Brooks, superintendent of James H. Brooks, superintendent of the Putnam county schools.

Expect Rush for 1926 Licenses

Unless there is a considerable speeding up of applicants for 1926 motor vehicle license plates there will be many who will not be allowed to run their motor vehicles on January 1. There are but 13 days remaining to obtain them before the New Year, taking out Sundays and Christmas day.

Up to today there has been between 500 and 600 license plates issued at Ulster County motor vehicle bureau on Fair street, and County Clerk John H. Saxe has been notified that orders will be sent out to the police, state troopers, sheriffs and town police officials to arrest on after January 1, those caught operating pleasure cars, trucks, busses, commercial cars, motorcycles or any vehicle not equipped as the law directs with the 1926 license plates. There will be no extension of time as in previous years as the State motor vehicle department gave ample time for all to secure plates five weeks before January 1. In order to save time applications for plates should be filed out properly and sworn to by a notary public thus obviating delay at the local motor vehicle bureau.

Opens Office Here.

The North American Health and Accident Insurance Company of Chicago, Ill., opened one of its chain of offices today in the United Cigar Store building, corner Wall and John streets. A Steindler of 112 West Pierpont street has been appointed division manager in charge of the local office.

College Club Meeting.

On Wednesday evening at 7:45 the College Club will meet with Miss Edith W. Case, 91 Elmendorf street. Miss Kate Walton, who took a rather unusual trip through Switzerland during the summer of 1924, will tell of her experiences.

Cotton Crop Over Experts' Figures

Washington, Dec. 3.—The 1925 cotton crop will be 305,000 bales greater than the government experts estimated it would be on November 24, the department of agriculture announced today in the annual cotton crop estimate of the season.

Stocks Rise on Coolidge Message

New York, Dec. 8.—The stock market took its cue today from the president's message to the Sixty-ninth Congress, in which he forecasted unlimited prosperity for the American people, based on enlarged production, elimination of waste, an expanding agricultural wealth and the certainty of tax reduction. After absorbing a considerable volume of profit taking, the market developed a strong upward trend shortly after noon, when the reports of the president's message were coming in over the wires.

The railroad, motor and industrial shares fared equally in the general advance in prices, outside of which the principal feature was a spurt in the public utility stocks, led by Consolidated Gas and American Water Works.

United States Steel sold at the highest price of the movement and only two points below its record high price.

New Haven, Missouri Pacific and other speculative rails sold at the best prices of the year. In the public utility stocks, Montana Power advanced four points and American Water Works two.

Motor stocks moved upward moderately, under the lead of Hudson, White and General Motors. Oils were unsteady, equipments, sugars, shipping stocks and most of the specialties featureless.

Granted a Separation.

A decree of separation in marriage has been granted plaintiff in the action brought by Mary M. Leahy against John P. Leahy, by Supreme Court Justice G. D. B. Hasbrouck. The grounds are cruel and inhuman treatment. The parties were married in Kingston in February, 1918, this being plaintiff's second marriage. There is a son, aged five, by the second marriage. Defendant is ordered to pay $8 a week alimony to support plaintiff and the son, also taxable costs of $53.50 to M. O. Auchmoody, attorney for plaintiff. There was no appearance on the part of the defendant.

K. H. S. to Play At Poughkeepsie

After having eaten dirt most generously at the hands of Poughkeepsie High School on the gridiron the Maroon and White basketball team will make an effort to uphold its prestige on the court this Friday afternoon when it meets its old rival on the Bridge City court.

The Kingston High School basketball team has plenty on its hands this season for all the honors it lost in the pigskin sport it must regain on the basketball court. And added to it all the Poughkeepsie games are always the most important on the Maroon and White schedule. This will make the first DUSO League match of the season for the locals.

Poughkeepsie was a stumbling block in the Maroon and White's path last season for the local outfit after having fought their way to the top of the league were stopped by the Bridge City boys in the deciding game of the DUSO League.

But in view of the manner which the Coach O'Leary's charges fought against the New Palatzer last week, Poughkeepsie will not find Kingston quite so simple a nut to crack this season. Poughkeepsie has only played one game so far this season and that was with a comparatively weak opponent, the rival aggregation of the local league, the Poughkeepsie High School last week by a 37 to 7 score. San Galoch is also the basketball coach this season and has quite a number of the football squad trying out for the basketball team. The game is scheduled for 4 o'clock on the Bridge City court.

"RED" GRANGE AND TEAM AT WASHINGTON

Washington, Dec. 8.—Harold "Red" Grange, the big ice man from Wheaton, Ill., divided interest in the capitol today with the new congress.

"Red" and his team were here to play a picked aggregation of ex-college football stars at American League park. Prospects were for a packed house, and the guarantee of plenty of rare and used coins to be added to his growing collection.

There is not much thrill out of signing a movie contract for $300,000, "Red" confided to a girl reporter.

"Three hundred thousand in bills would give a fellow quite a kick," said the Wheaton Iceman, "but a check's a check."

Clinton Seniors Vs. Tannersville

Tannersville High School will invade the camp of the Clinton Avenue Seniors this evening in an effort to beat the Epworth Hall boys on their home court. This is the second of a series of three games between these teams, the Tannersville lads having taken the first match on the mountain school court by a five point margin. This will be the Seniors only chance to obtain a grip on the series and if successful in getting the drop on their opponents in this combat the deciding game will be fought out on a neutral court. The Seniors have a slight edge on the visitors for besides having the advantage of their home court they are less strange to the amateur tactics than the Mountaineers. If the Seniors can drop the mountain lads this evening they will establish a prestige for themselves as their visitors have not lost a game in two years of playing. A large number of student fans will accompany the Tannersville outfit to the Epworth Hall court, corner of Liberty street and Clinton avenue.

The Clinton Juniors will play a preliminary match with an able aggregation, starting at 7:30.

Coach Eckert of the Seniors will choose from the following squad to start the affair, Slater, Smith, DeGross, Newkirk, Ballard, Markle, McGinnis and Dingman. A small fee will be charged at the door.

ORIOLES QUINTET BEAT THE CRESCENTS 20 TO 11

Capt. Fein and his fast war horses walked away with a win over Capt. Fitzgerald's aggregation by a score of 20 to 11, Monday night at the local court. The honors of the evening went to Capt. Fein and McGrane with seven points each. For the Orioles Winters came through with four points.

Thursday night the Colonials play the Triangles at 9 o'clock.

The score:

GRANGE'S TEAM MAY PLAY IN TOURNEY OF ROSES

Pasadena, Cal., Dec. 8.—While officials of the Tournament of Roses Committee, staging the annual East-West football game here New Year's, refused to deny or affirm the rumors, reports persisted today that the committee had telegraphed "Red" Grange and his professional team regarding the annual clash.

At the same time it was reported Alabama University may meet the University of Southern California in the Roses Bowl game.

ST. JOSEPH'S FIVE TO PLAY ST. MARY'S

The St. Joseph's basketball team will open the season Friday night at St. Mary's Hall, where they will meet the crack St. Mary's Junior outfit. St. Joseph's will probably line up with Hoffman, Davitt, Quinn, Merritt, Cahill and O'Reilly, while St. Mary's will use the regular combination of Joyce, Long, Noble, Gilday, Mooney, Graney and Perry. St. Mary's has five straight wins to its credit and expects to add another game Friday night.

Rocky Kansas New But Three Clubs Can Stand Pat

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 8.—Rocky Kansas of Buffalo is the new lightweight champion of the world. The little Hercules knight clubbed and nailed his way to the title by defeating Jimmy Goodrich, winner of the state commission's tournament, after 15 hard and vicious rounds.

After waiting, fighting and hopping, milling and punching his way through the greatest and toughest field of lightweights that the game has ever known, Kansas last night found the reward of perseverance, clean living and earnest, sincere efforts. Fate, which had sometimes treated him unkindly, in leading him up to the fountain of fame and opportunity, only to deny him the right to drink, suddenly changed to kindly, appreciative mood and literally poured into Rocky's cup the sweet drink of success, victory and a world's championship.

It was victory that no one could deny Buffalo's little stalwart veteran of great campaigns against great fighters and masters of the ring game. Critics said: "He's been a great old fighter, but he's too old, he'll crack after the sixth round."

But Kansas didn't crack. In the preliminaries, Tony Russo of Scranton drew with Lake Carr of Buffalo, while Frankie Garcia of Utica defeated Charles Pinto of Buffalo.

IRISH-AMERICANS WILL PLAY AT CHICHESTER.

On Saturday evening, December 12, the Kingston Irish-American will play the guest mountain team of Chichester.

The Irish-Americans, who have been playing great ball all season, expect a hard battle as the Chichester team boasts of a strong team. If they are as strong as they were last season, they will give the Kingston team a great battle.

In order to win this game Manager Lamphier expects to use his strongest line-up of the following men: Hoffman, Vogt, DuBols, Schefel, O'Reilly, Joyce, Cahill, Clark, a newcomer in basketball circles in the city, may also make the trip. He formerly played amateur ball in Binghamton.

The manager of the Chichester team also expects the largest crowd of the season as the Irish-Americans last year were one of the best liked teams to play in the mountain town.

FAST TROTTER AT KINGSTON RACE TRACK.

Jeritza, four year old bay filly, owned by I. O. Blake of New York city, arrived here today from Kentucky, where she has been for the past year. The mare was sent to Townsend Ackerman, who will train and race her next year. Mr. Ackerman gave her a mark of 2:06 1/4 at Toledo in a race against all aged horses.

Jeritza is a full sister to Oscawana, 2:03 1/2, owned by J. J. Cuneo of this city.

Mr. Ackerman is in New York this week attending the Old Glory horse sale and probably will add a few more trotters to his stable before the week is over.

In the absence of Mr. Ackerman, his stable is in charge of his assistant, C. H. Bach.

HOLY CROSS JUNIORS ISSUE CHALLENGES

The Holy Cross Juniors would like to secure games with teams in the junior class averaging 115 pounds.

For the last two years the Juniors have played 47 games, winning 44 and losing three. Those wishing to secure games please write George Dawkins, 138 Smith avenue, Kingston, N. Y.

They especially challenge the Clinton Avenue M. E. Juniors for a five game series. Two games on both courts and a neutral court to be chosen. They also challenge the Elmendorf Street Presbyterian Juniors or any other church league junior team.

But Three Clubs Can Stand Pat

Business Should be Brisk in Player Market at National League Meeting as Pirates, Athletics and Boston Braves are Only Teams Likely to Stay Intact.

New York, Dec. 8.—Out in the great two by four spaces of the Waldorf's corridors, where tongues are nimble and feet are flat, baseball's annual endurance contest will begin today with the National League meeting and the prospect of some sweeping changes in team personnel through barter and trade. The boys really figure to do some business in the player market this time because only three clubs out of a possible sixteen can afford to stand pat.

One of them is the Pittsburgh Pirates, world's champions, who have augmented a wonderful young ball club by acquiring Rhyme and Warner, stars of the San Francisco club. Another is the Philadelphia Athletics, barring the uncertainty concerning First Basemen Joe Hauser's recovery. A possible third is the Boston Braves, who figure themselves to be pretty well fixed by their recent trade with the Dodgers.

"I'll never manage that ball club again," John McGraw was quoted as saying after his 1925 Giants finished second to the Pirates. (He seemed about to make good his threat during the world series when Snyder, Terry and Meusel were almost traded to the Reds for Luque and Hargrave.)

Now, however, he seems to have turned sour on the transaction and, in view of the fact that the Phillies are said to have shown disposition to part with Ring and Honan, he may turn his attention in this direction. McGraw must have a catcher or concede the 1926 flag to the Pirates without further ado.

Most of the clubs, including the Dodgers, Cubs, Phillies, Yankees, Red Sox, Senators, Indians and White Sox need infielders. In fact, the Cubs and Phillies need almost anything any everything and the Senators simply can't start the American League race with hope of repeating unless they get a shortstop. This species is exceedingly rare these days, which means that a lot of clubs will want to do business but few of them can.

Miller Huggins of the Yankees, has announced that he picked up an American League second baseman about a week ago but kept the latter's identity a secret, causing great anguish among the news scavengers. Burke, O'Rourke and even Rigney, of the Detroit Tigers, have been picked as the man. So have Jimmy Dykes of the Athletics and Spencer Adams, of the Senators. Dykes might be the victim because the Athletics may want Wally Pipp in case Hauser fails to come back. Cleveland also could use Pipp but has little to give in return. Aaron Ward probably would be tossed in by way of emphasis and for good measure in case any such deal was closed.

The boys in the back room also traded Shocker and Pipp to the Red Sox for Howard Ehmke but the thing was hastily denied by both the Yanks and Red Sox. Denial also has been entered against the Detroit-Cleveland deal, involving Harry Hellmann. However, Cobb wants pitchers and the Indians have a few. Rogers Hornsby also seeks this same commodity.

Legislation against extra seats at the world series, the shortening of the regular season so that the series may be started by October 1, Clark Griffith's idea to make all tie games in the series null and void at the box office via rain checks, the player-writer thing and Barney Dreyfuss's plan to have all open stands protected by screens will be considered by the National League today and the American League tomorrow. Their findings then will be taken before the joint session on Thursday.

ACHING BACK AND LEGS GIVEN QUICK RELIEF
A policeman tells how to get rid of aches after exposure to wet and cold.
A policeman, who has been a member of the Philadelphia police department for twenty-six years, writes that he has found a way to get rid quickly of the aches and stiffness caused by over-exposure and exposure.
"I do a lot of walking and am exposed to all kinds of weather," he says. "When all other remedies fail, Sloan's Liniment gives me relief for pains in the back and legs." (Name and address of writer on request.)
Sloan's gets results because it doesn't just deaden the pain—it gets at the cause.
Just rub it on lightly, without rubbing. Right to the place that hurts, it sends a healing tide of fresh, new blood. Still muscles limber up, the aching stops, and you are as fit as ever in no time. Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists—35c.
